CLEARANCE OF SURPLUS STOCKS

AT TREMENDOUS REDUCTIONS.

The Greatest Money-Saving Opportunity of the Year.

The Greatest Price-Cutting Movement of Recent Times.

The unusually tight money market the latter part of October and this month has been a great inconvenience, not only to the banks but to hundreds of our manufacturers. To quickly raise funds to keep up their pay rolls and other expenses they were compelled to sacrifice their surplus stock at prices they would have ridiculed a few months ago. We happened to be in such a fortunate position that we could snap up these offerings for cash, and thus almost daily throughout October we have been acquiring various lines of merchandise for this great sale to be held and Throughout the Month of December.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 30th

Months ago we began planning to make December the greatest sales month of the year, and circumstances have recently conspired to further our efforts in this direction, in addition TO OUR SURPLUS STOCKS AT MARVELLOUS REDTCTIONS

Most Important Trade Event we ever Announced.

J. L. BOYES,

Will You Be There?

An informal public meeting will be held in the Council Chamber to-night, at half past seven o'clock, which every ratepayer is urged to attend. The object is to decide whether the electors should not take more earnest and effective action to induce a larger number of business men to take an interest in municipal affairs, and if so to formulate a plan to give effect to such a decision.

The Napanee Ladies Musical Club.

An excellent concert, under the above auspices, will be held in the Town Hall, Tuesday evening next, December 3rd, at 8 o'clock, by the following well known Belleville artists. Miss Stork, Contralto, Miss Higgs, violinist, and Mr. Cameron, baritone, assisted by Mrs. Burritt, our own favorite soprano. This concert which is open to the general public is under the management of Mrs. Hawley and Mrs. Lockridge and it is hoped that the efforts of these ladies will be rewarded by a large attendance. Members will PLEASE present their tickets at the door. General admission is 25cts. The annual concert of the Club will take place in the Opera Hall, Thursday evening, January 9th, 1908. For this event the ladies have secured Madame Le Grand Reeds, the eminent Canadian soprano, Mr. Arthur Bight, baritone, who so delighted a Napanee audience last May, and a cellist also from Toronto. Watch for further particulars each week.

It's an ill wind indeed that blows nobody good. We positively are going to stand at the back of the farmer and the working man. We contend they will be protected in the prices of merchandise. Therefore our many patrons will now have the greatest bargain opportunity of their lives right at the beginning of the winter season, just when they need goods most and just when it is most unusual to see a general sacrifice of prices. No such saving opportunity ever presented itself here before—an opportunity that would be utterly impossible for even us to give you had it not been for the money panic of the past month. We only have room for a few of the many good offerings during this great sale. Your Xmas goods won't cost you much this year. Pick out of this important list what you want and come to this store.

Our Attractions, and What People are Talking About, are Our Low Prices.

Every Department is Included in This Sale.

Mr. Geo. Breathen, of Bath, disposed of his very fast pacing colt, by Crossadore, 2:23 1/4 to Dr. D. R. Benson, of Napanee. Price $280.

Mr. Jas. Gordon has rented the little store of Mrs. Baker's one door west of J. J. Taylor's boot and shoe shop across from the Campbell House. He will have a fine assortment of his usual Xmas Literature, and will show them each Saturday through December. He invites a careful inspection. Call and see him. He also expects to make his usual December trips over the Bay of Quinte R. R. stopping two days in each place, as far as Marlbank. At Tanworth, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 3rd and 4th. At Marlbank, Thursday and Friday, December 5th and 6th.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian Church do not often attempt much in the way of entertainments, but when they do give an entertainment the people of Napanee have learned that it will be worth going to see. The Apron Sale, tea party and grand concert given in the town hall on Tuesday evening was no exception to the rule unless it was a little better than their previous efforts, which is saying a good deal. First class tea was served and the ladies were kept busy for a considerable time attending to the wants of the large number of people attending. For the concert the hall was crowded an exceptionally fine programme was rendered by local talent. Those taking the principal parts in the concert were attired in old time costumes.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of William Clement, Ernestown, on Wednesday of last week, when Miss Laura Helene Clement was united in marriage to Daniel Tollar. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bates, of Bath. The bride looked charming in a beautiful dress of brown silk, with white silk trimming, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and was unattended. After the ceremony the guests retired to the dining-room, where a most sumptuous tea had been prepared. The tables looked beautiful decorated with white flowers. Both are popular Frontenacers and the esteem in which they are held was manifested by many beautiful presents. Congratulations are profuse upon the auspicious event.

Great Falls of the Potomac.

The Great Falls of the Potomac are about fifteen miles above Washington, but the neighboring country has remained so wild and undeveloped that the falls have been difficult to reach. The famous Conduit or Aqueduct road, so called because it is built over the big conduit which brings the national capital its water supply, leads about up to the falls on the Maryland side and there stops. It is famous as one of the best roads in the country, and it is a favorite drive with Washington people and visitors. About halfway up this road crosses a deep gulch by means of the Cabin John bridge, a majestic stone arch built by the government and until recently the longest single masonry span in the world, about 220 feet. This bridge was begun just before the civil war, and a tablet was inserted in its side, giving the name of Jeff Davis as secretary of war. During the war his name was mutilated by soldiers, and now it is entirely cut off.—Pathfinder.

The death of Mrs. Robert Patterson removes from our midst one of our most respected neighbors. Although deceased had been ailing for some time her death came quite unexpectedly, from paralysis. Her funeral, on the 20th, to Wilton was largely attended. She leaves a husband, one son and three daughters.

The stone crusher belonging to the township of Ernestown is at work two miles west of here on Thompson's Hill. The township has done an immense lot of repairs to its roads putting on gravel, in marked contrast with other townships, whose roads are sadly neglected, if we except the toll-roads. In some townships the average elector pays his taxes regularly and is quite indifferent as to the why and the whereof. This is not as it should be, for every taxpayer should take a keen interest in all these things. We don't mind so much paying big taxes, but we would like to know that we get good value for our money.

CHURCH RE-OPENING

Moscow Methodist Church which has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired was re-opened on Sunday, Nov. 24th. Extensive repairs have been going on since early spring, and now Moscow has one of the finest country churches that can be found in the county. Sunday was all that could be desired as far as the weather was concerned, and long before the hour appointed for morning and evening service the church was filled to overflowing. Rev. Strike, Deseronto, preached at both services, Rev. Farnsworth assisting. Liberal offerings were given both morning and evening. On Monday evening a grand concert was given, for which the Ladies Aid had secured the best talent available. M. S. Midole, Napanee, was chosen chairman, and in our opinion no better could have been found. Revs. McAnnis, Odessa, Strike, Deseronto, and Farnsworth, Yarker, gave short addresses, and Mr. Gibbard, Napanee, gave a short address. These gentlemen with their witty remarks, kept the audience in excellent good humor all the evening. Miss Chrysler, elocutionist, and Miss Edna Ashley whistling soloist, both of Napanee, Miss Mabel Limbert, Newburgh, and Miss Georgie Warner, Colebrooke, soprano soloists, with Miss Pearl Nesbitt, Newburgh, pianist, were well received.

The repairs on the church amounted to fifteen hundred dollars. Of this amount the Ladies' Aid made up four hundred dollars, and what had not been raised by subscription before was subscribed during the evening, the debt being totally wiped out.

The proceeds of the concert amounted to nearly one hundred dollars.

Rev. Farnsworth, of Yarker circuit, has reason to be proud. Three churches, Yarker, Colebrooke and Moscow, having all been repaired and re-opened since his moving to the circuit, and all of them clear of debt.

EUROPE'S AIR WARSHIPS

FIVE NATIONS AT LEAST HAVE DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS.

Germany, England, Austria and Italy Have Squadrons of the Air.

At least five of the great Powers of Europe now possess more or less efficient dirigible war balloons, and these machines may play an important part in the next great conflict. France has La Patrie, the first and perhaps the most practical of all. Germany has the Parusel, the unnamed Gross balloon, and the Zeppelin airship. England has the Nulli Secundus, and both Austria and Italy have war dirigibles which really sail the air, though very little is known about them.

France was the first country to develop an aerial engine of war which was a distinct advance over the old time balloon, such as did good service as far back as the siege of Paris in 1870-71 and was used for observation in the Russo-Japanese war. On July 14 of this year, at the review of the garrison of Paris at Boulogne, La Patrie made her first appearance. The note of a siren in the air drew the eyes of the great crowd aloft, and there was a sure enough dirigible, looking like a great whale, sailing over their heads, now with, now against, and again athwart the wind, ascending and descending and changing her course at the will of her crew.

The later doings of La Patrie—how she sailed around the Eiffel Tower on July 23, with Premier Clemenceau as a passenger, called on President Fallieres at the Elysee Palace on August 9, and made various other flights under test conditions—are well known. The French consider her one of the most important features of the national defence. Their confidence in the present airship is confidence in any rate to cause them to appropriate $180,000 for the construction of three more.

The main body of La Patrie resembles A HUGE BOLOGNA SAUSAGE.

except that at one end it is pointed like a cigar. It is nearly 200 feet long and about 35 feet in diameter. It has two screw propellers, each of about 8 feet diameter, which gives it an average speed of about 27 miles an hour. The car is suspended from the body of the balloon and besides fuel for a ten hour flight it will carry a weight of more than 5,000 pounds. All the framework is made of steel tubing and the under side as a sheathing of light, tough armor-plate calculated to resist rifle bullets.

Equally like a sausage but shorter and thicker is the latest German balloon, which seems to have put both the Parusel and the Zeppelin inventions in the shade, at least for the present. It made its first appearance on July 23, sailing from Berlin from the artillery school at Angermunde and back again, remaining in the air three hours and twenty minutes. It is the invention of Major Gross of the Tegel aeronautic battalion of the German army, and it is understood that a whole flotilla is to be constructed on the same general pattern. The Germans continue to back Count Zeppelin also in his experiments with airships. He has actually constructed an airship of aluminum 500 feet long, which rose to a height of 2,500 feet and made a journey of thirty miles, flying over Lake Constance in 1906. The enormous weight and size of this machine render it hopeless as an adjunct to an army in the field and the Count is now busy trying to build a more easily portable military airship.

The Austrian dirigibles were first sent on on August 1st last. Three of them made a flight that day over the fortifications of Czernowitz. They remained in the air a considerable time, and the other governments believe that they are serviceable. The secret of their construction has been carefully guarded, as has that of the Italian war balloon. Little or nothing is known of the latter except that in the autumn field manoeuvres of the Italian army this year it was in constant operation, and staff officers, so far was riddled with it for many hours.

through the envelope without exploding and the chances of their striking the framework and causing serious harm are trifling.

Finally there is the prospect of encounters between the war balloons themselves, and this is what some students of the subject look forward to as the characteristic feature of future war. Each army will send out fleets of airships not merely to attack the enemy on land but to defend itself.

Hence arise theoretical estimates of future balloon fleets, their armament and their tactics. Whether they will fight with light cannon at long range or will attempt ramming and boarding, whether great battleships will be built with numerous crews or whether the fighting will be confined to skirmishes between light craft—these are the questions that soldiers in Europe are asking.

REPRESSION IN COREA.

Japanese Steps to Separate the Old Emperor and the New.

Being an ex-Emperor and the father of an Emperor in Corea at the present time entails disadvantage. A recent despatch from Seoul published in a Tokio paper said that the Japanese Resident General had begun to believe that the old ex-Emperor and his son were altogether too friendly and that repressive measures would have to be taken.

When the Emperor was forced off the throne last July in favor of his young and weak-minded son, who was considered more amenable to Japanese design, he did not take kindly to his voluntary abdication, but continued to keep up the old court intrigues and hand out advice from an obscure room of the palace to the throne. The new Emperor was only a tool in the hands of the Japanese, but he still retained some spark of filial and patriotic respect for the former ruler.

As a consequence the Japanese found that many of their plans for the acquisition of the last shreds of Korean sovereignty were being divulged and interfered with. With Japanese delicacy the agents of Prince Ito, the Resident General, undertook to separate the father and son in such a way as to prevent the exchange of confidences between them.

First the old Emperor was moved to a separate palace and the place was filled with Japanese in the guise of house chamberlains, equerries and secretaries in waiting. Still there were leaks and the reigning Emperor seemed to be under the influence of his father.

Through the pliant Korean Cabinet orders have recently been transmitted to the new Emperor that only once a week shall he visit his father, and that on these occasions there shall be nothing more between them than the formal tea drinking and exchange of the usual elaborate courtesies. The Emperor has been advised that since his father is really a bad man and no patriot it would be for the best interests of Corea for him to pay more attention to him than the rigorous code of Korean etiquette demands.

The last rag was stripped from the dignity of the former occupant of the throne on October 3, when the reigning Emperor or paid a visit in state to the tombs of his ancestors outside of the city walls. The procession through the city was headed by two mounted Japanese police inspectors and a troop of Japanese cavalry.

The imperial banner carried by a Japanese color sergeant preceded the imperial coach. The imperial coach, a gift from the Emperor of Japan to the Emperor of Corea, was drawn by Japanese horses and driven by Japanese drivers.

As all of this glitter passed out through the Taikan gate the old Emperor and the Crown Prince, his grandson, were allowed to stand near the gate and see the show. A Japanese reporter reported to the Nichi Nichi Shimbun of Tokio that the ex-Emperor "seemed overcome with emotion."

THE KING AS SPORTSMAN

HIS MAJESTY IS VERY SKILLFUL IN MANY GAMES.

Cricket and Football Are About the Only Sports in Which He Is Not Proficient.

The world knows all about the marvellous feats and sportsmanship of the strenuous tenant of the White House, but it has heard very little, curiously enough, about the really remarkable sporting record of the sovereign of the British Empire. It is as a sportsman indeed that his subjects love him most. Other people may bow to his qualities as a diplomat, a tactician, a wise ruler, but to the Englishman Edward VII. is first and foremost an excellent sportsman.

Almost the only outdoor games in which the King is not proficient are cricket and football. Although keenly interested in cricket he never excelled as a player. He and his brother had a professional coach, who tried to teach them the game when they were boys at Windsor, but though the man labored hard with his eager pupils he never succeeded in accomplishing great results, and went away lamenting that he "could make nowt on their Royal Highnesses." Yet notwithstanding this inability King Edward, like all the rest of his subjects, studies cricket scores and follows all the big matches. His football experiences are limited to watching such games as those between the Army and Navy

AT THE QUEEN'S CLUB.

He seriously thought of going out to the Crystal Palace to the cup final between the Australians and the English, but was dissuaded.

As a shot he has always shown wonderful skill and enthusiasm. In Baroda and Ceylon, in addition to buffalo and deer, he brought down an elephant and defied it of its tail, according to custom. A visit to Nepal introduced him to tiger hunting (he is credited with a bag of half a dozen specimens in one day). His American experiences made him familiar with the sport that the far Western prairies afford, and on the occasion of his first visit to Chillingham Castle thirty-five years ago, by concealing himself in a haycart, his Majesty accomplished the rare feat of laying low a specimen of the celebrated herd of wild cattle for which Lord Tankerville's border seat is famous.

However, in spite of his record as a hunter of big game, it is as a performer in the home covers that his subjects boast of him. At Sandringham he once brought down fifty birds with fifty-five shots. Even this incident is not recalled with such pride as the notable feat performed years ago when King Edward was the guest of Lord Carnarvon at Highclere Castle. In addition to the then Prince of Wales and his host there were four other excellent shots who in the course of three days brought down

10,800 HEAD OF GAME.

As a feat of endurance alone that performance was remarkable, for close upon 18,000 cartridges must have been fired, which gives an average of 1,000 cartridges a man each day. Allowing that the recoil from each cartridge exerted a force of 30 pounds, a simple calculation shows that the King had to withstand a force equivalent to raising forty tons weight one foot, while in addition the task of raising the gun to his shoulder at least 1,500 times would almost equal in three days the force requisite to raising nine tons one foot.

As an ardent and personally interested spectator at races the King is well known, and as a judge of horses he is in the first rank. Many of his entries have won at national and international races. The King himself was once a winning jockey. When stationed at Curragh Camp as Prince of Wales he rode his horse Rupee and easily won a steeplechase.

At golf the King plays an excellent even game and is often to be seen on his links at Balmoral in all sorts of bad weather, which is the test of the true golf lover.

MINER'S RETURN TO LIFE

PENNSYLVANIA MAN'S EXPERIENCE IN LIVING TOMB.

Lay in Crevice of Earth 450 Feet Below Surface Four Days and Nights.

For almost four days and nights—to be exact, eighty-four hours—McCabe lay in a crevice of the earth 450 feet below the surface. Early on a recent Saturday he was digging in a shaft of the Draper colliery at Gilberton, Penn., when an unlucky shot brought the earth down upon him, cutting off all escape.

That was bad enough, but the knowledge that what he felt would be his grave lay directly underneath the home in which his wife and children awaited his coming, sent a peculiar poignancy to his plight.

It is not often a miner works 450 feet beneath the floor of his own cottage. But that is what McCabe was doing when the roof fell in, and he knew it. His wife and family learned it later when they were told he had been caught and that there was little or no hope of his rescue.

MORE DEAD THAN ALIVE.

For four days and sleepless nights the wife moved about in her cottage with the knowledge that somewhere, almost right under her feet, her husband was slowly dying. The agony of it was a little too much for the woman, so that when they brought him back to her it was a long time before she could realize that it was her husband who had returned to her in the flesh from the grave.

When the top of the chamber in which he was working caved in and caused a rush of culm and water from the surface, relays of workmen toiled unceasingly to reach McCabe. Shortly after midnight the following Wednesday the rescuers detected a scratching noise which told them that McCabe was still living, and with renewed vigor fresh reliefs were put to work with the result that at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning he was reached.

McCabe was more nearly dead than alive when reached. He had not changed his position from the time the rush occurred, as he feared that by moving about another rush of culm might start which would end his life.

PRAYED FOR WIFE AND "KIDS."

After he realized that he was saved and had recovered a little of his strength, McCabe told this story of his experience—

"When the shot went off it took down the whole roof for 120 feet, they tell me. The slush coming down put my light out. If I had been six inches farther out I would have been caught. Right away I knew I was out off. The first thing I did was to say my prayers, and I thought of the wife and kids above me. I was praying for them more than for myself. I knew I would come out all right. But there I was down in the earth and they were right above me. If I could dig my way up I would come out in my own cellar. And I kept thinking of the wife, up there thinking she'd never see me again.

"I was in a space about ten feet square, but the highest part was only four feet, so I couldn't stand up. I had only one match and I saved that. I didn't know but maybe the water would rise and I kept the match so as to be able to find higher ground if I had to. Besides you never can tell about fire damp after a fall.

DRANK KEROSENE.

"So I spent the whole time in the dark. I found a couple of old dynamite boxes, and these I put together for a bed, and after a while went to sleep. When I woke up I was hungry. I had some tobacco with me and chewed some of that. The tobacco kept me from getting hungry, but after a while that wouldn't do.

"I think I took a long sleep, for when I woke up I felt as empty as an old powder can. I couldn't stand it any longer, so I commenced to sip the oil out of my lamp. The oil kept me from getting weak. There must be lots of nourish-heard of on August 1st last. Three of them made a flight that day over the fortifications of Craocria. They remained in the air a considerable time, and the other Governments believe that they are serviceable. The secret of their construction has been carefully guarded, as has that of the Italian war balloon. Little or nothing is known of the latter except that in the autumn field manoeuvres of the Italian army this year it was in constant operation, and staff officers, so far as they would talk about it at all.

EXPRESSED SATISFACTION.

England is the latest Power to give a demonstration of military aeronautics. The voyage of the Nulli Secundus to London and its failure to get back in the teeth of a stiff gale were recently told by cable.

So certain are the war experts that the balloon is to be a prominent factor in the strategy of the future that they are all forming large aeronautic establishments. France has no actual school for balloonists, but there are several balloon clubs, whose employees acquire a certain amount of skill in aerial navigation. These when they perform their military duty are drafted into the Battalion d'Aerostiers, which has its headquarters at Moissais, and they spend their entire term of service learning to navigate and fight and do scout duty in the air. The post is under a commandant, and it occupies the old zoological garden of St. Cyr. There is another station at Chalais-Mendon, also near Paris, where there is a large balloon factory.

Germany has a private school for aeronauts at Chemnitz. The military school and experiment station is at Jungfernhede. The head of the service is Major Gross of the Aerostars of Tegel.

England has experimental stations both at the camp of Aldershot and at Farnborough in Hampshire, whence the Nulli Secundus started on its memorable flight. Probably every country in Europe has a busy corps of experimenters at work.

Actively even in little Belgium was shown recently by the report of experiments in firing a rocket with artillery. This illustrates the new problem that the dirigible balloon is bound to introduce into the art of war.

The question of direction, steering, what will the balloon do in a gale, and what can be done against them? In the preliminary stage, of course, they usually fly in the most obvious way. With the present range of fire the power required of every commander in the field is some means superior to canvas sails of locating the enemy and gaining some idea of the STRENGTH OF HIS DEFENCES.

The dirigible balloon keeping the air for ten hours and traveling at the rate of 27 miles an hour plainly solves this problem. Many hundreds of feet in the air, the engineers of each army can trace the fortifications of a city, sketch the earthworks of an army arrayed for battle, count the guns and the battalions, estimate the re-enforcements coming up and form a fair idea of contemplated plans of attack. Much of this information can be conveyed by signal flashes direct to headquarters, and plans, sketches and photographic films can be dropped within the friendly lines without wasting time to descend.

Have can be spread in the enemy's lines by dropping explosives upon him. Carrying a crew of four men, La Patrie is said to be able to life more than 2,000 pounds of dead weight to a height of 1,000 feet and remain aloft two hours. What is to prevent her, the French experts ask, from hovering over the enemy's camp or works and dropping explosives there?

As these possibilities are open to both sides alike, the means of countering to the war balloon are eagerly discussed. At a height of 1,000 feet the balloon is safe from artillery fire. No guns now existing can be elevated sufficiently to fire at it. The rifle bullet is futile against the balloon itself. The hole which it bores in the envelope practically closes itself like a puncture in a rubber tire. Of course there is a leakage, but it is so trifling in proportion to the volume of the balloon that it would not seriously affect its buoyancy in a whole day's flight.

Even shrapnel has failed to bring down an old-fashioned balloon which were allowed to stand near the gate and see the show. A Japanese reporter reported to the Nichi Nichi Shinbun of Tokio that the ex-Emperor "seemed overcome with emotion."

CHILDREN OF THE ANCIENTS.

Present-Day Boys and Girls Hold a Very Different Place in the World.

There has recently been put upon exhibition in the British Museum a new collection, or more strictly speaking, a rearrangement of certain old collections in such a way as to make an entirely new exhibit, representing the surroundings and houses of the Greeks and Romans two thousand years ago.

One sees here the dress, furniture, kitchen utensils, surgical instruments—all the paraphernalia of life of the old peoples.

But among all the cases none is of more fascinating interest, none brings the far-away centuries more vividly before us than the case containing the toys of the children. Here are a tiny chariot with two prancing horses an inch and a half high, a leaden horseman, a Pomeranian dog, a fox-terrier with a collar, and also with a fine long tail—a monkey eating a bun.

Here are tiny mechanical toys, a doll's chair and a sofa of some brown glazed ware with imitation rolled back and arms. There are also maps painted with figures of children, and here, too, are the dolls. Most of them are carved, many with beautifully jointed legs and arms, and plainly very expensive, but the child of today would pass them by with no more than a curious glance. She would be right, for these dolls at least were never played with—they were discovered, nearly all of them, in funeral urns.

But among them there is one that no d-d-d-d little girl could fail to recognize—a little rag doll, faded and yellow and worn. That, there is no question, was loved and cherished by some child twenty centuries ago.

There are other things in the collection. Battles of strange shapes, with gleaming possibilities of noise, more soldiers, fish-boats which they wisely declare, save for a little dust, might have been made just now. All the libraries of the world could not prove so clearly the eternal kinship of childhood as this one case of battered toys.

But, as a writer in the London Spectator reminds us, although the children two thousand years ago were playing the same games as the children of today, childhood itself now holds a very different place in the world. It was only their own children whom the old Greeks and Romans loved and protected.

The children of other nations, the poor and the outcast, were either neglected or put to violent death. Children's homes, children's hospitals, children's courts, vacation societies of all kinds, free kindergartens and schools, these and uncounted other places and organizations are caring for the children of the twentieth century as they have never in the history of the world been cared for before.

SPOON OF MILK, 50,000 GERMS.

Under Normal Conditions, Salt Spoon of Milk Contains Thousands.

Even in an age when people have been taught to realize that germs lurk in the most unlikely places, the announcement that, under normal conditions, 50,000 are to be found in a saltspoon of milk will come as something of a surprise.

This startling statement was made, however, by Dr. E. W. Sandwith, Gresham, Professor of Medicine, who lectured at Gresham College the other night on the subject of milk. Continuing, he said that by means of cleansing cans, washing milkers' hands, and sterilizing pails, the number of bacteria could be reduced by 40,000. Milk that had only 1,000 bacteria per saltspoon might be considered very good milk.

About one-third of cows were infected with tuberculosis, but the Government failed to grapple with the question, because it could not make up its mind who should pay compensation to the cattle-owners if the cows were destroyed.

in the first rank. Many of his enemies have won at national and international races. The King himself was once a winning jockey. When stationed at Curragh Camp as Prince of Wales he rode his horse Rupee and easily won a steeplechase.

At golf the King plays an excellent even game and is often to be seen on his links at Balmoral in all sorts of bad weather, which is the test of the true golf lover.

Only the other day His Majesty easily won in a croquet tournament. He is very fond of this game, as of billiards, where his quick eye enables him to make the most

REMARKABLY ACCURATE SHOTS.

All England knows that the King's great interest in motors and all their improvements has helped the trade in automobiles. As a yachtsman his knowledge has been valuable to many, and his love of the sea has made him take a keen interest in all matters pertaining to boating, the building of boats, etc. Not even Sir Thomas Lipton himself was more disappointed when he failed to bring back the cup from America than was the King.

Of course, with increasing years, the King's sportsmanship is less strenuous, and while preserving a great interest in the advancement of all sports, he has turned somewhat to quieter things for himself. He has become a pigeon fancier, and has a loft at Sandringham, where he keeps his birds, the original ancestors of which were given him by the King of the Belgians. Also he spends many hours at bridge. Here he shows his sportsmanship in being an excellent and agreeable loser when necessary, and while a remarkably fine player himself, is always a very uncritical and patient partner for less skilled players.

LONG LIVED ICELANDERS.

It would be interesting to know if any part of the world beats Iceland in the average length of life of its inhabitants. It is shown in the census of 1905 that on an average the people of that island live to the age of 61.8 years, which is very nearly double the mean duration of human life as it was computed a generation ago. Sweden and Norway are regarded as very healthful countries, but Iceland takes the palm in longevity, the mean duration of life in Sweden being 50.02 years and in Norway 49.94 years. Some of Iceland's earthquakes are nerve racking, but on the whole the lives of most of its simple and industrious inhabitants slip along with few incidents that unduly stimulate or depress the pulse. Summer and winter the same old mail boat from Leith steams into the harbor of Reykjavik every three weeks but very rarely brings news that touches Iceland so closely as to make excitement. In fact, the little island enjoys many of the advantages of civilization and avoids most of its drawbacks.

EMERGE FROM CHRYSLIS.

Women of Turkey Daily Becoming Modernized.

Compared with fifteen years ago, even the outward appearance of the women of Turkey has changed appreciably. The Yasnak, or veil, is being more discarded, and when still worn conceals much less of the face and figure than before. Dress generally has now a distinct western look about it, and more often than not a modern hat is worn around the waist. Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the altered conditions of life is the comparative freedom with which modern Turkish women move about in Public. Formerly kept under strict guard by the eunuchs, they now show themselves freely in the company of male relatives and friends. Physicians are no longer debarred from administering medical aid to Turkish women at their own homes, an unheard-of practice less than twenty years ago.

CHAMPAGNE BY THE YARD.

At the annual dinner of the Corporation of Hantley, England, new councillors, in accordance with custom, drank champagne from a glass a yard long. Those who did not succeed in finishing the draught had the remainder poured down their shirt fronts by two stout wart cup bearers.

bed, and after a while went to sleep. When I woke up I felt as empty as an old powder can. I couldn't stand it any longer, so I commenced to sip the oil out of my lamp. The oil kept me from getting weak. There must be lots of nourishment in it. I broke off chips of wood and chewed them and swallowed a little when I got it fine. It didn't go bad mixed with the oil. When I got thirsty I caught handfuls of the sulphur water dripping from the rocks. It was pretty strong, but there wasn't anything else on tap.

"It must have been some time on Tuesday that I heard the men working, and I knew help was near. That last two hours seemed longer than days."

GIRLS DEFENDED THE SOLDIERS.

Boycott Against Boycott in a German Village—Cure for Jealousy.

There is always jealousy in the German rural districts over the favor that the troops detailed to various villages and small towns find from the young women.

Things took a queer turn this summer in Forst, a village of Baden, near Bruchsal, where the One Hundred and Forty-Second Regiment of the line, recruited at Offenbourg, was quartered during the season of field training. The good old method of thrashing soldiers who made themselves agreeable to the girls proved a dismal failure. The men of the One Hundred and Forty-second were husky and hard hitters and stood together when threatened by numbers. The country boys at last determined to get square with the girls who accepted attentions from the soldiers.

The word was therefore passed around that any girl who was detected in talking, walking or flirting with a "musketier" or receiving visits from one, should be boycotted—they have adopted the word into German—at the dance which was to follow the religious services at the close of the harvesting. A notice to this effect was even printed in the Bruchsal newspaper. It seemed quite settled that the girls who smiled on the soldiers should have no partners at the great event of the year.

But the young men altogether underestimated the loyalty of the girls to each other. In the very next number of the Bruchsal paper there appeared a notice of the unanimous resolve of all the maidens of Forst to boycott completely the local youth at the coming dance. A formal invitation was further conveyed to the members of the One Hundred and Forty-second Regiment to come to the dance, with an assurance that they would not lack partners so far as the Forst girls would go round. The young woman's notice ended with these patriotic words:

"It is not clear to us why we should be expected to treat the soldiers slightly. Are they not as good men as our lads in Forst? And why should the poor soldier who serves his God, his prince and his fatherland have no one to say a kind word to him?"

This was signed "The Association of Girls of Forst for the Improvement of Foreign Relations. Especially with Regiment No. 142." Negotiations for a truce, it is reported, were not wholly unsuccessful, and no engagements were broken.

THE DIFFERENCE.

When a woman becomes flurried she feels for a fan. When a man becomes flurried he feels for a cigar.

Women jump to conclusions, and generally hit. Men reason things out logically, and generally miss them.

Some women can't pass a milliner's shop without looking in. Some men can't pass a restaurant without going in.

Women love adoration, approbation, self-denial on the part of others. So do the men.

A woman always carries her purse in her hand, so that other women will see it. A man carries his in his inside pockets, so that his wife won't see it.

WILL BUILD CHEAP HOUSE

THOMAS A. EDISON'S INVENTION
WILL COST $1,000.

A Three-Storey Concrete Dwelling,
Which Can be Put Up in Half a Day.

A house which can be erected in half a day at a cost of $1,000—this is what Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor, says can be built. He has been working on the idea for some time, and he says that it is practicable.

"Before next summer," says he, "I will build a three-storey, indestructible concrete house that a laboring man earning $1.50 a day can buy and run. It will be as artistic and comfortable as any Fifth avenue mansion, and will be built in half a day."

The words are somewhat startling, but coming from such a source they bear the stamp of veracity.

HAS ELEVEN ROOMS.

In his laboratory at Orange, N. J., Mr. Edison has a model of the house which promises to be such a boon to the man with a small salary. This represents a three-storey Queen Anne house, with a high peaked tiled roof and a bay front, containing 11 rooms, high studded and well lighted. The walls within and without are frescoed simply.

"You hardly think we can put that up in half a day?" the inventor told an interviewer. "Well, we can, and for less than $1,000, too. This is how we'll do it."

HOW IT IS DONE.

"Over in that factory you just looked at we are moulding cast iron forms. The inside facings of these forms are nickel-plated, and are fashioned exactly like the outside of the model. When these are done, we are ready to build any number of houses."

"At six in the morning we take the moveable steel casings to a vacant lot. These are clamped together with bolts, and you have before you a house of iron, with hollow walls. Meanwhile we are mixing our concrete—one part cement, three parts sand, and three parts quarter-inch crushed stones. The machinery to raise this soft concrete to the top of this iron framework, you understand, is already on the spot."

DOES NOT TAKE LONG.

"By six o'clock at night there is your house inside your ironwork. Everything, except the doors and windows, is in place. In six days the iron frame is unbolted and removed. In another eight days the concrete is completely hardened, and the house ready to live in. Fifteen days from start to finish."

"The only wood used is the strips around the edges of the floors on which to tack down a carpet and those around the wall for the picture-moulding. All this is put in place in the ironwork before the concrete has been poured in. The tiling around the fireplaces and in the chimneys, the gas and water pipes, are also stuck in the same way in the concrete walls. The furnaces, the heating pipes, the bath tubs, water closets, are all cast with the walls."

"There will be no plumbing bills; there is no plumbing to be done. There will be no insurance; there's nothing to burn. Rome wasn't built in a day, they say, but New York can be."

FOR THE WORKINGMAN.

"I've done this for the workingman, who is doing his best to bring up a family. I won't make a cent on it. One day I went through the east side. You know it. Nothing but a mess of brick boxes. I got the idea of this house at the time."

"In a few years all this will be changed. You will go outside of Manhattan and see rows of healthful, beautiful concrete houses, one for each

SPEND 15 CENTS DAILY

A WEALTHY MAN'S OUTLAY FOR HIS LIVING.

Rich Bachelor, Known as "Tax Title" Seaman, Has Economical Ideas.

With a fortune of upwards of a quarter of a million dollars, "Tax Title" Seaman, of Omaha, Nebraska, lives upon fifteen cents a day, and declares that the expenditure of this modest sum gives him everything needful to his comfort, and that he, having no family, is not justified in expending more. Seaman recently gave the Young Men's Christian Association $100 to help it to pay off an indebtedness on its new building. This is the first gift of the sort he ever has been known to make.

Seaman is sixty years old and a bachelor. The story of how he amassed his fortune is very unique. He has got together his quarter of a million dollars trafficking in tax titles. His Christian name is Andrew, but he is known to everybody in Omaha as "Tax Title" Seaman on account of his peculiar business.

SPENDS $5 A YEAR ON DRESS.

This peculiar man lives alone in a little, old weather-beaten, dilapidated house near the village of Benson, a few miles west of Omaha, and he does his own cooking, washing, ironing, sweeping, mending and cobbling. It is five or six miles from his home to the business district of Omaha, where he transacts his unique business. Yet he does not make a practice of riding on the street cars. He commonly walks from his home to the city in the morning and from the city back to his home in the evening, and not infrequently he takes much longer walks.

He maintains stoutly that one can live comfortably and decently on fifteen cents a day. "I myself have demonstrated clearly and conclusively that this can be done," he said. "No man has any business to spend more than $5 a year on dress. I myself do not spend that much, but perhaps I have a better faculty for practising little economies than most men have."

"It costs very little indeed for a man to dress well, and it costs very little for a man to live well if he knows how and what to eat."

DOES HIS OWN COOKING.

"I do a great deal of my own cooking. But occasionally I get tired of home cooking, as they call it, and go to the restaurants. I do not always eat the same things or pay the same amount for my meals. But I manage to keep my living expenses down to fifteen cents a day on an average. I paid only five cents for my breakfast this morning. I know a little place here in town where you can get a good breakfast for five cents. One morning I was hungrier than usual and ordered cakes, and they cost me three cents extra. When I get my meals at home it costs me considerably less than fifteen cents a day to live."

"I don't eat much meat. I find that nuts are a good substitute for meat, and I eat them a good deal. Bread is my chief article of diet. Give me plenty of bread and I can get on without much else. I never drink tea or coffee. Not a drop of liquor has passed my lips in many years. I never eat soup except when I go to Denver. There I know a place where you can get a whole dinner for ten cents, with soup thrown in. I eat the soup because it is brought on, and if I did not eat it I should beat myself out of something I am entitled to, and thus be practically throwing money away."

HONEST MAN BECOMES THIEF.

SHE CANNOT BE EMPRESS

WIFE OF THE HEIR APPARENT TO THE AUSTRIAN THRONE.

Romance in Life of Archduke Francis Ferdinand—Wife Not of Royal Blood.

Though all Austria is heartily thankful at the recovery of Francis Joseph, the man who is most relieved is, strangely enough, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, who would have ruled had the emperor died. The reasons for this are political and personal.

The heir-apparent, who is the nephew of the aged ruler, is a pallid-eyed man, a military dandy whose ambitions do not rise above the fit of his clothes, and no ambition to assume the tremendous responsibilities of keeping together the polyglot empire whose disruption may follow the demise of the Kaiser-King. That much for state reasons.

WIFE CANNOT SHARE THRONE.

The personal reasons for Franz Ferdinand's avoidance of the Emperor's robes are that he deeply loves his wife and she can never share his throne. He will occupy the unhappy and unique position of a married emperor without an empress. He deeply loves also his three children, and their position is equally strange, for they have no imperial rights. His children are barred from the right of succession, and the heir-presumptive to the Austrian throne is his nephew, the Archduke Charles Francis, a young man, twenty years of age.

The story of Archduke Franz Ferdinand is but one page in the wonderful volume of the Hapsburg romance. Years ago the archduke became enslaved by the beauty and charm of a girl, who, although of noble rank, could not be recognized as a bride for the heir to the throne.

TRIED TO PREVENT MARRIAGE.

The girl he loved was countess Sophie Chitez, lady in waiting upon the Archduchess Isabella.

The most strenuous efforts were made by the archduke's imperial relatives and the court officials to dissuade him from his plan to marry Countess Sophie. High reasons of state were urged against the union, but the pair were madly in love and nothing could shake the archduke's determination to make Sophie his wife.

At last he obtained the consent of the emperor, who found that it was impossible to prevent the marriage. The couple were made happy in July, 1900. But the marriage could only be a morganatic one, since the countess was not of royal blood. Also she could not assume the rank of archduchess, but was consoled with the title of Princess of Hohenburg, and though her husband may be emperor, she will not be empress.

EX-LORD MAYOR'S BEST WORK.

Sir William Treloar Has Collected $300,000 for Cripples' Home.

Last week Sir William Treloar laid aside the robes of the Lord Mayor of London. The bulky, graybearded carpenter and merchant carries his sixty-five years lightly. His has been the most active administration of this highly decorative office known in recent years. The greatest of his works has been the collection of £60,000 ($300,000) for building a big home for crippled children on sixty acres of land in Hampshire given him by act of parliament.

The fund was started with £40 ($200) a year ago. The King and Queen immediately gave their support and money has poured in steadily ever since, coming from all classes, but most of it from workingmen. The closing days of Sir William's term are being picturesquely connected with this fund.

KILL HUSBANDS BY SCORE

WOMEN FEED THEM ON THE WRONG
SORT OF FOOD.

Responsible For Deaths in Many Cases —Should Exercise Discretion In Cooking.

Women who allow their husbands to get fat are roundly socked by George Harvey, editor of the North American Review. Those who are widowed before they reach the age of 60 years are blamed for the loss of their providers through their ignorance of even simple rules for the management and care of husbands.

According to Mr. Harvey, a married man is under no obligation to famiharize himself with conditions conducive to his physical well being, "the entire responsibility," he says, "rests upon the wife, who has vastly more at stake, to care for, while pretending to obey him."

"And how ill equipped for the performance of this task, however well intended, is the average woman! Practically all she knows is that milk is good for babies, and all she thinks is that grown men must have much food to feed the furnaces of their physical organism. A failing appetite is to her a signal of danger, and, for a while, anxious and well meaning, she places before him tempting viands and pleads with him to try and eat more if only to please her, with the inevitable consequence that he, being weak and chivalrous and hating to be hectored and wept over, lugubriously yields and adds fuel, often fatal, to a lurking disorder."

WILFUL IGNORANCE.

"Wilful ignorance is at the bottom of all such blundering; while fatuously striving to save them women kill good providers by the score, and then hold themselves to be fit objects of sympathy because, forsooth, of their self-imposed widowhood. Frankly, we have no patience with such persons. There is no more occasion for a woman under 60 to be a widow than there is for her to be a spinster. The average man is tough, easily guided, and only too glad to conform with any subtle suggestions that are not too obviously for his good or too contrary to his inclinations. His attitude is neither obtuse nor contumacious, but he desires tactful suggestion of a rational remedy, not mere reproachful statement of bitter fact, and that is what the woman who has failed to equip herself for the performance of her duty as a caretaker is unable to give. Primarily, therefore, women are responsible, through ignorance, for the multiplication of tobacco hearts and the filling of married drunkards' graves."

Reduction in the quantity of food consumed and intelligent regulation of its character are declared to be absolutely essential to the longevity of the husband. In proof of this are the writings of Luigi Carnaro on the subject of diet.

HARVEY CITES CARNARO.

"Carnaro," says Mr. Harvey, "ate of all kinds of food, animal as well as vegetable, but in small quantity, and he drank moderately of the light wines of his country, diminishing his slender rations as age increased. He finally died without agony, while comfortably seated in an armchair, at the age of 104. The mere fact that one never hears of an old stout man establishes the wisdom of the method proposed for the aged, but it is equally applicable to middle life."

"What folly, then, for a woman to endeavor, through the concoction of special dishes and by means of earnest pleadings, to tempt the appetite of her bilious provider! Better far deprive him of all food till the natural expenditure has exhausted the income, and

"I've done this for the workingman, who is doing his best to bring up a family. I won't make a cent on it. One day I went through the east side. You know it. 'Nothing but a mess of brick boxes.' I got the idea of this house at the time.

"In a few years all this will be changed. You will go outside of Manhattan and see rows of healthful, beautiful concrete houses, one for each family. The expense of making them will be less than that of the dirtiest tenement on Rivington street.

"These houses won't be all alike. I am leaving the patent open to every one. Competing companies will spring up, each making a different style of house.

"No, the architecture will not be monotonous. In fact, the architects never had their chance till now. Before, they've had to rush out something cheap, never anything beautiful. Now they won't have to worry about expense. The most artistic house is as cheap as the crudest. Why! it's going to mean a revival in architecture."

UNIONS CAN'T OBJECT.

"Will the unions object because they can't plumb, carpenter, lay bricks and the like?" Edison was asked.

A winning smile crept over the inventor's face.

"Well, they ought not to," he said. "They are going to live in these houses."

"I've been working on this for two years. That's the way it is with everything I do: The idea comes easy enough—doesn't take 1 per cent. of my time. But the details mean plug, plug, plug. And the worst part of it is, when you've done anything, it's never perfect, and never will be."

HERRINGS 33 A PENNY.

Sixty Million Herrings Landed at Yarmouth One Day Recently.

There were remarkable scenes at Yarmouth, England, the other day. The town was full of herrings. It is estimated that 60,000,000 fish were landed from the boats, and prices dropped to as low as 2s. 6d. per cran of 1,000 herrings—thirty-three for a penny.

The work of unloading proceeded that night along a stretch of nearly three miles with the aid of flare lamps. Hundreds of horses and carts were occupied till past midnight carting away fish to the curing houses, and the Highland herring girls, pursuing their work with the aid of naphtha torches, lightened their labors by singing choruses.

Some boats were diverted to Grimsby to ease off the pressure. Hundreds of baskets and barrels filled with herrings had to remain all night on the quays. Every man in want of a job was able to find one during the day.

One firm report that the average catch of their fleet of a hundred boats was 130,000 fish. The sea under the influence of a good tide and a full moon seemed teeming with herrings.

HE ROBBED THE THIEF.

How a Pilgrim Got Back His Stolen Purse in Church.

From Czestochowa, the Mecca of Polish pilgrims, comes an amazing story of coincidences, writes a Warsaw correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette. A pilgrim went to one of the priests and complained that some thief had stolen his purse while he was in church, and asked for money. The priest replied that he had no money and that the best thing for the pilgrim to do was to try to find the thief.

"I shall go into the church and steal money from somebody else," said the pilgrim, "for I have nothing to go home with." He went into the church and seeing a man in the crowd with a wallet on his back slipped his hand into it and pulled out his own stolen purse, with the exact sum he had left in it. He was so glad to find his money that he hurried off to tell the priest and the thief got away.

There I know a place where you can get a whole dinner for ten cents, with soup thrown in. I eat the soup because it is brought on, and if I did not eat it I should beat myself out of something I am entitled to, and thus be practically throwing money away."

HONEST MAN BECOMES THIEF.

Then Able to Recover His Own Property, Which Had Been Stolen.

In real life the long arm of coincidence often stretches farther than any novelist would dare to make it go in fiction. Of that, amazing proof has just been furnished at Czestochowa, the mecca of Polish pilgrims. Among them was Ivan Dimowitsky, who had come a long distance on his pious errand. While he was in the church performing his devotions, one thief in the crowd stole his purse, containing all his money. He went to one of the priests and told him of his troubles, and asked him for money enough to take him back to his home.

"Alas," replied the priest, "I have no money to give you. You had better try to find the thief."

"To find among thousands a man I don't know would require a miracle and I am no miracle-worker," answered Ivan. "Perhaps, holy father, you could work the miracle for me?"

The priest protested that he had no such power.

"Then," said Ivan, "I shall go back into the church and steal the money I need from somebody, the first chance I get."

"If you do that," said the priest, "you will be a very wicked man and ought to be sent to prison for it, and the church should impose a heavy penance on you, too."

But Ivan thought he might have as much luck as the thief who had robbed him and escape detection. Back he went to the church. Seeing a man with his wallet on his back he slipped his hand into it and pulled out a purse. It was his own purse and it contained the exact sum which he had left in it.

In his delight Ivan gave no thought to turning the man over to justice. He hurried jubilantly back to the priest and told how he had recovered his stolen money. "Surely," he said, "it must have been Providence that guided me."

The perplexed priest imposed no penance on him and Ivan went his way rejoicing. Meanwhile, the thief had escaped.

What moral is to be drawn from the story is a conundrum. Certainly, it isn't "Honesty is the best policy."

MAHOGANY HUNTERS.

Mahogany trees do not grow in clusters, but are scattered throughout the forest and hidden in a dense growth of underbrush, vines, and creepers, and require a skillful and experienced woodsman to find them. He seeks the highest ground in a forest, climbs to the top of the tallest tree, and surveys the surrounding country. The mahogany has a peculiar foliage, and his practiced eye soon detects the trees within sight. When axmen follow the hunter, and then come the sawyers and hewers, a large mahogany taking two men a full day to fell it. The tree has large spurs, which project from the trunk at its base, and scaffolds must be erected so that the tree can be cut above the spurs. This leaves a stump ten to fifteen feet high, which is sheer waste, as the stump really contains the best lumber. The hunter has nothing to do with the work of cutting or removing the tree, his duty being simply to locate it. If he is clever and energetic, his remuneration may amount to $500 or $1,000 a month, but he may travel weeks at a time without detecting a tree, and as he is generally paid by results, his earnings are rather precarious.

Hampshire given him by act of parliament.

The fund was started with £40 ($200) a year ago. The King and Queen immediately gave their support and money has poured in steadily ever since, coming from all classes, but most of it from workmen. The closing days of Sir William's term are being picturesquely connected with this fund.

The other evening found the old campaigner in evening dress, with the star of knighthood gleaming on his breast, addressing a crowded meeting of sports at Wonderland, the White-chapel home of boxing. The pugilists knocked off pummeling each other while the Lord Mayor told with pathetic simplicity the wants of tens of thousands of little boys and girls of the metropolis, who needed back or leg braces, cork legs, crutches and invalid chairs.

The sports listened with deep attention. It was a motley throng, some being in evening dress, but the majority wearing the diversified clothes of an east end street. When the speech ended the crowd broke into uproarious cheers and shillings and sovereigns began to roll into the Lord Mayor's handbag.

IMPRISONED FOR DEBT.

Judge Hears Pitiful Story and Orders Husband's Release.

In tears, a poor woman applied to Judge Willis, K. C., at the Southwark County Court, England, for the release of her husband, who had been arrested and taken to Brixton jail for debt.

She explained that, having six of her seven children ill, she borrowed £2, without the knowing of her husband, from a money-lender in order to keep a roof over the poor little invalids' heads, and to provide them with a little nourishment. She thought she would be able to repay the debt by easy instalments, but other troubles came, her husband fractured his knee and was in hospital for three months.

She still kept the knowledge of the loan from him, and when he was summoned she attended the court, and was offered 4s. by the money-lender not to appear. Consequently she went home, and the next she heard was that her husband had been arrested. He would lose his work in consequence. She was told he could only be released on payment of the judgment debt, but she had only five farthings on her.

Judge Willis said the husband must be released, and he instructed the chief clerk to give her a note from the court to take to Brixton Prison and fetch him away. His Honor also handed the woman is, from his own pocket to pay the return fares from Brixton.

The woman, still crying, warmly thanked his Honor, and left the court with a fervent "God bless you, sir!"

IN THE GAME OF LIFE.

Life is a game, a struggle,
A frolic, as Fate decrees,
And the only way to meet it
Is with stiffened spine and knees.
Yield, if you must, for sorrow,
Give patience her timely due,
But keep your head uplifted,
No matter what else you do!

Friends may be true or faithless,
Sunshine may fall or stay,
Grief, like a shadow, linger,
Happiness fade away.
Fortune may frown or flicker,
Her smile may be hard to woo;
But keep your head uplifted,
No matter what else you do!

So shall you a conqueror always,
So, though the way be long,
Shall you win success worth having,
Heart cheery and spirit strong.
Obstacles? Gaily scale them!
Trouble? Why, just wade through!
But keep your head uplifted,
No matter what else you do!

hears of an old stout man establishes the wisdom of the method proposed for the aged, but it is equally applicable to middle life.

"What folly, then, for a woman to endeavor, through the concoction of special dishes and by means of earnest pleadings, to tempt the appetite of her bilious provider! Better far deprive him of all food till the natural expenditure has exhausted the income, and then resist rather than encourage the ravages of nature."

A WATCH IN A RING.

May be Seen in the Window of a London, England, Jeweller.

Tiny watches, that tell the time with surprising accuracy and which are worn on finger-rings over manly's glove, are the very latest novelties in the form of practical ornaments to be seen now in the windows of a London jeweller.

The jeweller in question received one of these ring watches recently from his Swiss watchmaker, who had his workmen make the ornament as a result of an argument over the question into how small a space the works of an accurate timepiece could be composed.

The jeweller placed the tiny ornament in his window as a curiosity, but one day a smartly-dressed lady entered the shop to make a close examination of the curiosity and persuaded him to sell it for $250. She slipped it upon her finger over her glove and left the shop.

Shortly afterwards the jeweller had so many calls for ring watches that he ordered a dozen from his watchmaker, and now the fashion seems to be fairly well established.

But this latest luxury is an expensive one, for the cheapest ring watch costs $100, and from this the price ranges up to three or even four times that amount, the price varying, of course, with the number and quality of the gems used. The workmanship, however, is the same in each watch, and the works will stand a surprising amount of knocking about before requiring repair. They keep excellent time, to within a minute a day.

BURN BACTERIA IN WATER.

New System of Purifying Water Used in Philadelphia.

A new system of purifying water is being installed at Philadelphia. It is the application of nature's own method to the solution of the problem which vexes all great cities. It is known that running water purifies itself. The explanation is that running water becomes thoroughly aerated, and the organic matter in the water is thus decomposed and consumed. The purifying agent in air is oxygen, especially in the form of ozone. The quantity of ozone in the atmosphere is limited, but it is greatest after a thunder storm or in high latitudes where there is much electricity in the air.

In Philadelphia electric discharges are passed through air confined in tubes, changing the oxygen to ozone. The air is then driven into a column of water at its base. As it rises through the standpipe containing the water the ozone seizes upon bacteria and other organic matter, uniting to form carbonic acid gas, which bubbles to the top and escapes. The process is exactly similar to burning coal, except that the combustion is perfect and there is no ash. Foul water goes in at the top of the standpipe and a steady stream of pure water, clear as crystal, flows from the base of the pipe.

POOR CONSOLATION.

"The man who languishes in jail," remarked the home-grown philosopher, "has one consolation at least."
"What's that?" queried the easy one.
"That he occupies a position from which most of the world is barred out," answered the philosophy dissembler.

FATAL ENDING OF TUG RACE

A Port Dalhousie Vessel Was Struck By a Barge.

A despatch from St. Catharines says: A terrible accident occurred on Lake Ontario, ten miles below Port Dalhousie, about 8 o'clock on Saturday night, whereby three lives were lost and three others had very narrow escapes, when the tug Escort was sunk by being struck by the barge Harrison, in tow of the steamer Westmount. Early in the evening the Westmount and barge were seen away down the lake, approaching Port Dalhousie. Two tugs, the Escort and Golden City, started out from port in a race to secure the barge, where having been great rivalry between the tugs to secure tugs. The Escort was in charge of Capt. Harry Dunlop and the Golden City in charge of Capt. McCoppen. They raced about ten miles down the lake before meeting the Westmount and barge, the Golden City slightly in the lead. As they approached the barge the Golden City made a circle to come alongside of her, but the Escort to save time endeavored to cut across the bow of the barge, between the Westmount and Harrison, which were going about ten miles an hour. The captain of the Escort evidently miscalculated the speed or distance, and the huge steel tow line caught the pilot house of the Escort, tearing it away. Almost immediately after the Harrison struck the tug amidships, capsizing her. She sank, carrying down Capt. Harry Dunlop, Engineer Albert Dunlop, and a canal helper named Charles Christmas, none of whom were seen again. Three others on board, Melvin Barnes, the fireman; Herman Cook, deckhand, and Miss Annie Bartlett, cook on the tug, were rescued with great difficulty by those on the tug Golden City.

The Westmount had slackened speed immediately when the accident occurred and every effort was made to rescue those on-board the ill-fated tug or recover the bodies of those drowned, but they have not yet been recovered and it is probable they are imprisoned in the wreckage of the tug, which sank in a hundred and twenty feet of water. After cruising around for some time the Westmount came on to Port Dalhousie, and the tug Golden City, with the rescued on board brought in the Harrison.

Fashion Hints.

HINTS FOR HOME SEWING.

In current modes we must count the penchant for uniformity in color; that is, each person chooses the tints that suit her. She does not so much wear only one shade, for this year many are blended together in one toilet, but she adapts combined tints that show her at her best. Some take to tones of blue mingled with slate color, sometimes with pink, others prefer pink toning into red. Blue does not suit dark people, but those with clear complexions. Green is the hue for blondes. Dark persons look best in deep shades of yellow, and orange pink suits youth and a fair skin.

A charming creation takes the form of a short, straight coat in fawn chine silk, patterned with pale pink roses and their foliage, and lined with soft pink satin. Another is in black glaze silk, cut quite short, and loose both in front and behind. This has a trimming of blue silk overlaid with creamy lace and a square lace collar that looks most picturesque. Either of these is pretty and practical, and within the capabilities of a clever home dressmaker. A good economist might make such a coat from the results of a summer sale or from a part of a last summer's black glaze costume.

The ever useful and ornamental lace waist is pretty when finished off with gold or silver cords and tassels. It is even prettier with the cording in ivory silk or some pale color, especially if the waist be mounted over a satin lining to match. An ivory net waist over a bold patterned chine silk was trimmed with cords in three colors, reproducing the dominant tints, and another over the same sort of slip was finished off with tiny silk fringe of many hues.

Several of the new models indicate a return to the draped waist; that is, draped around the figure in graceful, carefree folds, and accords well with the sleeves, most becoming to an arm that lacks roundness. An overplump arm should avoid horizontal lines and a close fit. Sometimes the lines of the waist formed by the draping are quite horizontal; sometimes they describe a V upwards or downwards.

Some women have taken to ordering fancy tailor makes in preference to the severer, more masculine and more uniform style. Long jackets trimmed with braid buttons, and velvet, and opening on to waistcoats, cutaway coats, and sloping shoulders, with tucks, pipings, and insertions, are in fashion.

The deep bands of trimming of various descriptions, notably embroidery, ornament the skirts this winter, and in some cases are placed below the knees and in others between the knees and the waist. This should depend a good deal on the figure of the wearer and her height.

When the rumor started that sleeves were going to be long again many women sighed. The majority of women cannot afford to discard a practically new gown owing to a vagary of fashion.

INDIA'S RAIL

Trouble on the Secor the Co

A despatch from Calcutta says: Trouble on the East Indian Railway, 2,165 miles long and the second largest line in India, is rapidly becoming paralyzed. The trouble originated of such marked prominence as the appearance of the short sleeve. But there is hope for the thrifty woman, as it will be quite correct to have sleeves made of different material from the waist, and the short sleeved frock may be brought up to date without making too heavy a demand on the purse of the woman with limited means.

A handsome blouse of embroidered muslin with heavy motifs of grape bunches and wine leaves, which had been badly torn, had the best of the design cut out and applied, after being tinted biscuit color, to a ground work of a similar shade of net. Much the same treatment was accorded to a length of lace which also had suffered. In this case a groundwork of ninon was supplied. When these applied designs are used they can be much enhanced in effect by backing just the pattern itself with satin or velvet of some bright color. A beautiful gown of net, with a good pattern of lace forming a deep border, had an eighteen inch wide width of rose crepe de chine attached to the net behind the border, the rest of the net being left transparent over a neutral tinted slip. This is a new notion and could be worked out in many variations, being a change from the old idea of the hem of satin or taffetas at the foot.

The coats of the fall show most delightful trimming; the narrow bands of a contrasting material embroidered and braided alternate with the border stitchery that forms really deep bands and designs with irregular edges upon the material itself. What may almost be described as an imitation of the old world flat plaited ruching is formed of a zigzag pattern of narrow braid, disposed closely along a hem of cloth or velvet. Bands of satin cut out in Swiss embroidery style, heavily worked with silk, look extremely well, and so do others with applications of a different style. Corded silk with applications of cloth makes a lovely trimming, and velvet also is treated in the same style. One coat has a border of true lovers' knots and looped ribbons between running all the length.

Wrote Letter to Sweetheart Before Committing Act—May Recover.

A despatch from North Bay says: Parnell O'Connor, aged 21, shot himself on Saturday night with suicidal intent, a bullet from a 32-calibre revolver passing through his right lung. O'Connor was a guest at the North Bay House, and before making the attempt on his life wrote a letter to his sweetheart at Cobalt saying they would never meet again on earth and bidding her a last farewell. O'Connor is still alive, but his recovery is doubtful. His parents live in Dakota, and he has been employed in North Bay and Cobalt for two years.

FIVE WORKMEN KILLED.

The Boiler Exploded in a Virginia Planing Mill.

A despatch from Norfolk, Va., says: Five workmen were killed, one fatally injured, and a number seriously injured by the explosion of a boiler in a planing mill at the John L. Roper Lumber mills, Gilmerton, Norfolk county, on Wednesday afternoon.

HEALTH

DOCTOR APPLE.

An apple each day keeps the doctor away;
Another at night starves him outright;
An apple each meal, and one for sleep,
Will kill him and shroud him and bury him deep.

This little jingle should have a place on the door of every medicine closet, and indeed, if the apple were more generally regarded from a medicinal viewpoint, the contents of the medicine closets could be very largely dispensed with.

A prominent physician, once said that "if one-half the meat, one fourth the bread and all the candy given to children could be made to give place to fruit, of which apples formed a large proportion, the death rate would be greatly reduced, their bodies being better formed, and all would be healthier and have far better brain activity."

Good, well-ripened apples, eaten in reasonable quantities, not only will never be injurious to a child or grown person, but if taken as a food, are the most acceptable, satisfying and healthful one that can be chosen; and this is equally true whether they be eaten fresh or after preserving, canning or drying.

As the apple contains more phosphoric acid in easily digested form than any other fruit, it is of high value as a brain food. It is also a thorough disinfectant of the mouth, that important doorway to the stomach, and if eaten regularly does much to prevent throat diseases.

There is no better remedy for insomnia than a ripe, juicy apple eaten just before retiring. Its wholesome acid excites the action of the liver and promotes sound and refreshing sleep.

For the same reason an apple eaten before breakfast every morning will prove the best of complexion beautifiers. No devotee of apples ever suffers from jaundice or liver spots and dyspeptics are almost invariably ordered apples for their wholesome action upon the digestive organs.

The tickling sensation of the throat causing one to cough at night may be greatly relieved by placing a roasted apple by the bedside, and taking a teaspoonful of the pulp whenever annoyed by a desire to cough.

As the apple can be had in fresh and perfect condition during a greater portion of the year than any other of the fruits, the appetizing ways of preparing it have grown to be legion, so that one need never tire of it through lack of variation. And as the heat applied in cooking breaks down the cells and more thoroughly blends the acids and sugar of the fruit therewith, its wholesomeness and digestibility are increased by cooking.

Wise in her day is the housewife and mother who numbers "Doctor Apple" as a regular and honored member of her household.—Edith E. Shaw.

MALIGNANT PUSTULE.

This is the common form in which anthrax begins in man, and so the term is often employed as a synonym of that disease.

In nature anthrax is a disease of animals, chiefly grazing animals—sheep and cattle; but man is susceptible to its poison, and in certain countries it is a not uncommon cause of death.

Malignant pustule comes from inoculation of a little wound—an abrasion or perhaps a pimple from which the tip has been scratched—with matter containing the germ of the disease, the anthrax bacillus; or the virus may be implanted by a biting fly.

It begins as a small red pimple which itches and burns a little, but does not

FISHERY LAWS VIOLATED

Several Boats, Many Nets and a Large Quantity of Fish Seized.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: The most important seizures of fishing boats, net and fish effected by the Dominion Government officials in years, have been made in the neighborhood of Killarney, by Capt. A. C. Duncan, Dominion Inspector of Fisheries. It is expected that wholesale prosecutions will be instituted by the Government. Many thousands of dollars are involved in the seizures.

Capt. Duncan passed through the Canadian "Soo" on Thursday on his way west, after inspecting fisheries under his jurisdiction in the eastern division. During his operations in the neighborhood of Killarney, just below the "Soo," Duncan was accompanied by a number of officers from the "Soo," and the flotilla under his charge consisted of a tug, a sailboat and a gasoline launch.

In nearly every instance Capt. Duncan found that the fishery laws were being violated, the result being a large number of seizures, some of them considered of the most important nature. The largest number of infractions of the law consisted in catching whitefish and trout out of season and having them in their possession.

One of the tugs, belonging to Purvis Bros., was seized, as well as a large number of pound nets and two gasoline launches, belonging to Gauthier, of French River.

James Noble, Dominion Fish Commissioner, it is alleged, was found to have freshly caught whitefish and trout in his possession. Noble claimed the fish were caught in the open season and had been kept over, but the officers claim they were fresh. Even had they been caught in the manner described, the offence is none the less flagrant in the eyes of the law, which distinctly states that none of the fish mentioned shall be in the possession of any party after the closing of the season on Nov. 1. James Rock, a fisherman of Killarney, was caught with whitefish and trout in his possession.

The fish were all confiscated by the officers, and the boats which were seized were liberated after the officers had obtained a receipt from the owners for them, which practically means that they are still in the hands of the Government.

Capt. Duncan did not feel inclined to deal offhand with the case, considering the extent of the seizures and their importance in the eyes of the Government. He accordingly referred the matter to the Government, which will take action in the near future.

FALLING OFF IN THE CUT.

Possible Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in Ottawa Valley Log Output.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Although no definite estimate as to the output of logs from the Ottawa Valley timber limits for the coming season can be obtained until the mills close towards the end of the month, it is given out by the lumbermen that there will be a noticeable falling off in the cutting. The decrease has been estimated as high as 25 per cent. The reason ascribed is that the general advance in wages and cost of provisions make the owners take out just as little as they possibly can.

TO FACE ORDEAL OF KNIFE.

Kaiser Will Undergo an Operation for His Throat.

A despatch from London says: The real cause of the Kaiser remaining in England after the termination of his State visit to the British court is to prepare for an operation, which will take place within a few days. The operation will be through the ear, affecting the throat. It touches the Kaiser's original trouble there, which is hereditary. The operation is not a serious one. It is presumably intended to relieve the throat through the operation on the passages connecting the ear and throat.

THE GERMAN BUDGET.

It Shows An Increase of $34,416,690 as Compared with Last Year.

A despatch from Berlin says: The Imperial Budget of 1908 balances at $687,511,500, an increase of $34,416,690 as compared with last year's budget. A bill will be introduced authorizing the raising of $65,116,520 by means of a credit operation for the purpose of meeting non-recurring and extraordinary expenditure, and also to issue Treasury bonds, to an amount not exceeding $87,500,000.

THE MOOR LAKE WRECK.

Jury Places the Blame on Driver of Light Engine.

A despatch from Pembroke says: Thursday night, at the Town Hall, Crown Attorney Metcalf and Coroner Joseph opened an inquest into the death of John Nadeau, fireman, one of the victims of the Moor Lake tragedy on the C. P. R., by which seven lives were lost.

Only four witnesses were called. The jurors were only out fifteen minutes, and rendered the following verdict, which places the responsibility on Hendrie, the engineer who was in charge of the light engine:

"That John Nadeau's death was due to the recklessness of Engineer Hendrie running past Bass Lake siding and trying to make Moor Lake siding, thereby running on the time of No. 8 passenger train, and meeting No. 8 in collision 1 1/2 miles east of Moor Lake station."

They have been obliged to stop work in consequence of the shortage of coal, and it is feared that the tie-up will delay loading outward-bound ships. The strikers' complaint of overwork and poor pay. The strike at the present time is especially serious, in view of the famine conditions, which are becoming daily more widespread, necessitating the speedy transportation of relief supplies.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST PLAGUE.
Fears of Infection by Rats From Vessels Reaching Vancouver.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Government is taking every possible precaution to prevent the bubonic plague from getting a footing in the coast cities of British Columbia. Matters are in bad shape in San Francisco and Seattle. In the former city since the 12th of August there have been eighty-four cases of plague and fifty-four deaths, while one death occurred in Seattle two weeks ago. Dr. Montizambert, director general of public health, is now in British Columbia, advising the local quarantine and medical health officers as to the precautions which may be necessary to prevent the spread of the malady into Canada. It is possible that, in addition to the precautions which are being taken with respect to vessels, that inspectors may be placed at the various points where the railways cross the international boundary line into the Dominion.

FOULDS' WILL FOUND.
The Romantic Story of a Winnipeg Estate.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Old-timers remember the late George Foulds, builder of the Foulds block and owner of several other very valuable properties. During his life he acquired considerable property, which he left to Mrs. Bowler, cutting out his family. A subsequent will has been discovered, by which the estate is left to Foulds' children, and a statement of claim has been filed on behalf of one of the children by Messrs. Macdonald, Haggar, Sullivan & Carr, seeking to set aside the will giving the estate to Mrs. Bowler and asking that probate be directed of the last found will. The estate is estimated at about $250,000. It is understood the will was found in Vancouver, in an old trunk amongst deceased's papers, and narrowly escaped being burned with what was considered worthless documents.

MORE WOMEN'S RIGHTS.
They May Wear Hats in Theatres According to Law.

A despatch from Montreal says: Judge Piche decided that women can wear their hats at the theatre, and the managers have no right to demand that they shall not. The judgment was given in connection with a charge of assault made by Miss Robertine Barry against Special Constable Lefebvre of the Quimetoscope Theatre, St. Catherine Street. Constable Lefebvre, who ejected her, and whom she charged with assault, was fined $10 and costs or a month in jail.

Two Officials of Bokhara Treasury Attacked and Mortally Wounded.

son, and in certain countries it is a not uncommon cause of death. Malignant pustule comes from inoculation of a little wound—an abrasion or perhaps a pimple from which the tip has been scratched—with matter containing the germ of the disease, the anthrax bacillus; or the virus may be implanted by a biting fly. It begins as a small red pimple which itches and burns a little, but does not seem to be of any special significance. In a day or two a minute blister, the size of a pin-head forms on the pimple, and this soon breaks and leaves a blackish crust, round which a ring of new blisters forms. These also break, and are replaced by black scabs. In this way the sore spreads, until finally there is quite a surface of dirty-looking black crusts below the general level of the skin; this is really gangrenous, or dead, tissue. The skin surrounding it is swollen, dark red and hard.

By this time the disease will have invaded the blood, and the general symptoms of anthrax will have declared themselves. These consist in fever, which is usually not very high, rapid breathing, and a weak and intermittent pulse. There is headache, and in the severe cases there may be delirium. There is another form of anthrax, called "wool-sorters' disease," in which infection occurs by inhalation and there is no external mark. The symptoms are the same as the constitutional symptoms of malignant pustule, with the addition of oppression and pain in the chest, cough, and other signs of pulmonary trouble. A curious thing about this disease is that the symptoms are often so mild that the gravity of the condition is not suspected until the sufferer falls into collapse. In the case of malignant pustule the spot should be cut out as soon as the nature of the affliction is suspected, or, if this cannot be done, it should be treated thoroughly with powerful caustic, or the hot iron should be used. The hope in this treatment is that so many of the germs will be destroyed and the virulence of the disease so modified as to give a chance of recovery. Malignant pustule is not always fatal, although the mortality is extremely high.—Youth's Companion.

CATCHING GOLD.
A great deal of lung trouble, consumption, and throat difficulties are chargeable directly to the habit of lounging and talking on going out from heated audience rooms. People sit for hours in warm rooms, then go out suddenly into the cold air. They are in high spirits, and naturally inclined to chatter and laugh, often keeping this up for a long time. The sudden reducing of the temperature of the lungs by the enormous inhalation of very cold air is productive of congestion and chills innumerable. When one is very much fatigued the strength and vitality are reduced, making one susceptible to cold and illness that under ordinary conditions would be harmless. When one feels thoroughly tired out, the very best plan is to take a warm bath, followed by an alcohol rub, and then go into bed, if only for ten minutes. The water should not be hot enough to cause perspiration; it should only be warm enough to allow one to relax. The stay in the tub must never be longer than five minutes. The bed should be ready to get into immediately on leaving the tub.

HEALTH IS QUEEN OF BEAUTY.
There is just one royal road to beauty and that is good health. To try to mould a beautiful figure and a pretty face out of an unhealthy body is as impossible as it would be for an architect to build his foundation on a bed of sand. Before you try your beauty exercises to reduce the hips and waist and to fill out the hollows of the neck, stop and think if you have the physical foundations to build on. If you find you are anemic, exhausted and tired, postpone the beauty exercises and spend your time resting and getting strong. Sleep as much as you can, take long walks, drink lots of water and do not eat many sweets.

The road follows the river for a considerable distance and is cut in the rocky bank of the river. It passes under an almost complete arch about two miles from the Loup railway bridge. Some thirty men were working at this point when the side of the mountain gave way. The road was covered with debris for a distance of thirty yards, and seventeen of the workmen were buried beneath the fallen earth. Two men were taken out alive. A man who was buried under the rock talked for some time with those trying to save him. Their efforts were useless, and the man died some time later. Fourteen bodies have been recovered.

BOILING EGGS WITHOUT WATER.
An Electrical Process Invented by Chicago Professor.

A despatch from Chicago, Ill., says: Boiling eggs without the use of water is the latest novelty exploited at one of Chicago's leading hotels, and as the feat is accomplished directly before the eyes of the diner the new way of cooking generally attracts attention and comment. The waiter places a boxlike apparatus on the table, and turns on a little electricity and places the desired number of eggs in the heater. In about a minute and a half, or half the time consumed by the hot water process, the eggs are cooked to a turn. The process is an idea originated by Professor Badine of Armour Institute.

A despatch from Regina says: Robert Braithwaite, the old farmer who was shot by Corporal Dunn of the Northwest Mounted Police while resisting arrest on Thursday, is dead. The policeman will be placed on trial for murder.

YEAR'S TRADE OF DOMINION

Total Imports and Exports Show Big Increase.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the Trade and Commerce Department for 1907 has just been issued. While, owing to the change in the termination of the fiscal year, from June 30th to March 31st, the report in detail covers only the nine months ended March 31st, 1907, the trade figures have been recomputed for the purpose of comparison, and the result is summarized thus in the report of the Deputy Minister: "The total imports and exports during the nine months covered by this report was $465,963,204, as compared with $550,872,645 during the previous year of twelve months, or $399,797,029 during the corresponding nine months of the previous year; or, again, the total trade during the twelve months to June 30th, 1907 (unrevised figures), was $617,964,052, as compared with $550,872,645 as above." A summary of the trade of Canada for the twelve months ended Sept. 30th shows total imports of $362,459,907, as against $256,359,343 during the corresponding period of 1906, an increase of $106,100,564, compared with last year's budget. A bill will be introduced authorizing the raising of $65,110,520 by means of a credit operation for the purpose of meeting non-recurring and extraordinary expenditure, and also to issue Treasury bonds to an amount not exceeding $87,500,000.

LAPLAND FACES FAMINE.
Deluging Rains Have Damaged the Crops.

A despatch from Stockholm, Sweden, says: Famine conditions are threatening the Vesterlenland and Vesterbotten districts of Lapland, where deluging rains have had disastrous effects on the crops. Official advices say that the threatened barley only weighs 54 kilograms per barrel, instead of the usual 112; that bread baked therefrom is black and almost worthless as food, and that the milk cows must be slaughtered to prevent the people from dying of starvation. The Swedish Cabinet has been petitioned to remove the duty on grain, and other steps will be taken in order to alleviate the threatened starvation.

THE UNDERGROUND BALL.
Nearly Thousand Guests Entertained by Duke of Portland.

A despatch from London says: Nearly a thousand guests occupied the Duke of Portland's underground ballroom on Wednesday night at the ball given in honor of the King and Queen of Spain. The room, which is 150 feet long and 60 feet wide, was gorgeously decorated with flowers and the Spanish colors. Dancing began at 10 o'clock. The costumes and uniforms blazed under the light of thousands of electric lamps. The mile-long tunnel carriage-way, extending from the Town of Workshop, was not used. It is supposed that this was due to the extreme precautions taken for the safety of King Alfonso.

WILL BUILD FOREIGN WARSHIPS.
Japan Sends Tender to Construct Spanish Battleships.

A despatch from London says: What is apparently the first Japanese competitive bid for the building of foreign warships is reported by the Madrid correspondent of the Morning Post in connection with Spain's proposed new warships. It is stated that an offer has been received from Japan to construct the vessels at a lower cost than any tender submitted from other countries.

Exports of Canadian produce amounted to $244,180,922, as against $244,706,381, a decrease of $615,459. The duty collected on imports for the twelve months ended Sept. 30th was $58,661,696, an increase of $10,619,943. Exports to Great Britain amounted to $126,805,965, a decrease of $7,403,372. Exports to the United States totalled $59,981,440, an increase of $1,788,110. It is to be noted, however, that an increase in exports for October will more than make up the comparative deficiency in the figures for the period taken. Imports from Great Britain for the twelve months ended Sept. 30th totalled $96,078,752, an increase of $12,142, while imports from the United States amounted to $233,043,016, an increase of $32,598,046.

forsake their trust in order to keep on good terms with the rascals out of office."

Yet another London paper said "The existence of an organized system of corruption among public officials in Canada has been conclusively proved, and like everything else on the continent the bribery has been colossal". The London Graphic Despatch spoke out openly and said "Even Tammany Hall smells sweet and clean in comparison with the huge stink pot of the Conservative government."

Rascals Turned Out.

Matters were brought to a climax in 1896 when the accumulating scandals led to the rout of the Conservative party, and the men who had brought disgrace upon themselves and made of Canada a byword, were ignominiously turned out of office by an insulted people.

In view of the claims to political purity on the part of the Conservative party and press, and the vague but baseless charges laid at the door of their political opponents, it may be well to recollect Canadian history.

After Sir John Macdonald had been found guilty of that greatest of all political scandals, which involved the sale of the Canadian Pacific charter along with fifty millions of acres of land and thirty millions of dollars cash, to Sir Hugh Allan, in exchange for $360,000 of a corruption fund, the people of Canada buried him and his party beneath an avalanche of votes. Even this foul blot on the history of Canada was partially overlooked by the people, who again trusted their affairs to a Conservative Government, but after years of bitter experience, in which the corruption, thievery and fraud were practiced with undiminished vigor, the Conservative party in 1896 was promptly and effectively buried.

Concrete Cases of Fraud.

To come to concrete cases of Tory corruption. In the Chicoutimi by-election of 1892, Savard (Lib) and Belley (Con.) ran. Just prior to election the returning officer telegraphed to hold a poll at Point aux Esgrimaux. His telegraphed instructions were: Proceed to-morrow as follows: Get a small wooden box made, prepare a certain number of ballot papers and write the names of the candidates upon them."

Again on the day of election he wired: "If you have no list, allow those who are supposed to be electors to vote and it will be all right." The deputy took the hint and returned 63 votes for Belley (Con.) and none for Savard (Lib). Belley had 39 majority in the riding without these votes; Savard was elected by 24 majority. The returning officer declared Belley elected, and a recount was asked for. It was held before a judge who was a brother-in-law to the Tory candidate. The 63 illegal votes were counted, and Belley took his seat and held it until 1896, backed by the Tory majority in the House.

Manitoba Election Frauds

Much is said just now about the frauds practiced on Conservative voters in Manitoba. What did the Conservatives do in 1896 in Manitoba? A plot was hatched in Winnipeg to steal the elections, and it was carried out in this manner, according to the following instructions issued by the Conservative organizer in Toronto. These instructions read:

Tory Corruptions Instructions.

"We have the printing of the ballots, therefore a sufficient number should be printed extra to enable the deputy returning officer to have them marked for our candidate and ready to use after the count to replace those read out wrongly to the scrutineers. Or the de-

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients, worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will only prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter free. All correspondence difficulty imposed upon the election officials; a very disagreeable duty, a duty they did not desire but could not shirk—of cutting and fitting the local lists to the larger area. In other words hundreds of names, Liberal and Conservatives, were on lists for certain constituencies, but had no right there, from the fact that the Dominion boundaries for which the lists were originally intended.

It meant that all those names improperly on the lists had a line drawn through them, something that had to be done, that it was right should be done, but nevertheless was a very unfortunate and disagreeable duty for the responsible officials and very annoying to the elector whose name had to be removed, and this is all that is meant by the "thin red line" and it is the very unsatisfactory foundation upon which rests the charge that ten thousand Conservatives were deprived of their franchise.

It must also be stated that in removing names from the lists improperly there, no considerations of party influenced the officials. If a name had no right on the list it was taken off, whether a Liberal or a Conservative, another charge that the officials were actuated by partisan motives falls to the ground.

More Tory Lies Nailed.

The Conservatives often claim that while in office they expended more in public works than the Liberals in the same length of time. Let us examine the figures. For the eleven years previous to 1896, when they went out of office, the Conservatives spent $80,000.

POLITICAL NEWS!

The history of the Tory party in Canada has been one long record of disreputable political practice, open and unblushing bribery both of constituencies by expert gangs of personators and pluggers, ballot box stuffers, ballot stealers, ballot switchers, thumb nail artists and other equally criminal side line operators.

The years of Tory rule in Canada have been marked by some of the most glaring instances of corruption, and stealing of the public moneys and public domain which have ever disgraced a civilized country. Conservative government was distinguished by an utter absence of constructive ability, and a lack of intelligent grasp of conditions most deplorable, and had it not been for the progressive spirit of the Canadian people, and prompt action in turning the rascals out, Canada would today have been nationally bankrupt, her prestige ruined, her resources dormant in the hills and valleys, her credit destroyed, and her public men of the Conservative stripe the derision of the civilized world.

English Press on Tories

The London Times, the London Graphic, the London Telegraph, the Birmingham Gazette, the London Echo, the St. James Gazette, the Graphic Dispatch, and many others commented on the deplorable condition of affairs in Canada as conducted by Conservatives and expressed the opinion "that only the most resolute and drastic purification can redeem public life in Canada from the taint of corruption, the like of which we have not seen in our own country for hundreds of years." Said one paper "ascals out of office defraud the public in order to bribe rascals in office, and rascals in office bribe themselves, sacrifice their honor and

"We have the printing of the ballots, therefore a sufficient number should be printed extra to enable the deputy returning officer to have them marked for our candidate and ready to use after the count to replace those read out wrongly to the scrutineers. Or the deputy returning officer can have them marked and folded in his pocket to slip into the box in place of an opposition ballot if the opportunity happens. This, of course, will occur quite frequently if we have the control of both scrutineers.

"To get control of both scrutineers, have one of our men, not a prominent one, but a supposed kicker, for instance, apply to the Opposition to be put in as scrutineer inside. They are generally short of workers, and a few plausible men will turn the election in a close constituency."

"Efforts should be made to make these methods work in wards that give the heaviest Opposition vote."

"Having control of both scrutineers, a large vote can be polled—dead and absent voters, etc., can have their ballots marked; there is no redress if both scrutineers were present."

"The deputy returning officer should be a reliable, sharp and plausible man, so that if we do not get control of the Opposition scrutineers, he can, when the counting time arrives, ask both scrutineers to take a piece of paper, and record the vote of their candidate as he reads the ballots which have been emptied on the table. He will then have a chance to read out wrongly, so that a majority can be secured for our candidate. The ballots should be put back into the box as quickly as they are read. The extra one's will do to fix things correctly when he goes."

"Spoiled ballots can be made sure by a little doctoring. Opposition ballots can be spoiled by the lead out of a pencil fastened under the little finger with beeswax drawn across opposite our candidate's name in opening the ballot."

Such was the devilish ingenuity practiced by the "party of purity," to steal the election in Manitoba in 1896. It was the gamblers device of stacking the cards in defiance of all principle and honor. The men guilty of this crime are crying so loudly against what they describe as the "thin red line" in Manitoba, about which more by and by.

Four Fraudulent Methods.

It will be observed that the instructions given above point out four distinct methods of corruption and barefaced stealing of the franchise advocated by the pure minded Conservatives.

(1) Slipping—(calling out a ballot for the Tory candidate when it is in reality marked for the Liberal).

(2) Switching—(stealing ballots marked for the Liberal candidate and putting into the box marked for the Tory candidate).

(3) Stuffing—(polling votes of dead and absent men with the connivance of both scrutineers).

(Spilling)—(by defacing the ballots marked for the Liberal candidate opposite the name of the Tory candidate with a piece of lead fastened under the finger nail).

These were the general instructions, and although some of the criminals were detected and punished, so widespread was the fraud that hundreds of electors were deprived of their franchise, and many criminals escaped punishment.

In the city of Winnipeg alone where 5 000 to 6,000 ballots would have been sufficient in an honest election there were 10,000 printed, and yet all had been issued up to two o'clock, and the polls had to be closed while more were printed. Altogether the Manitoba elections furnished an instance of the boldest and most colossal election fraud in history and the aspicies of the "party of purity."

The Thin Red Line.

One cannot possibly follow up all the filthy charges of the Conservatives but in particular cases it is just as well to make known the real facts. Mr. Borden made many allusions during his recent tour through Manitoba to what is known as the "thin red line." He made it appear that agents of the Liberal party deliberately put a thin red line through the names of several thousand Conservative voters which appeared in the voters' list, and he did not hesitate to characterize the proceeding as a huge fraud on the electors.

The matter has been thoroughly explained, and a few words will make the casual reader understand clearly what was done.

It must be remembered that in Manitoba there were no special voters' lists for Dominion constituencies and the lists used were the ones applicable to the local constituencies. In many instances the Dominion constituency contained portions of several local constituencies so that the voters' lists contained names of men who resided outside the Dominion boundary. The local lists were used and they were made for the constituencies whose boundaries do not correspond with those of the Dominion seats. This

The Conservatives often claim that while in office they expended more in public works than the Liberals in the same length of time. Let us examine the figures. For the eleven years previous to 1896, when they went out of office, the Conservatives spent $80,000,000 on capital account, and to their everlasting discredit be it known, that they borrowed $62,000,000 of this, that is, they went in debt for public improvements. During the past eleven years the Liberals have spent $127,000,000 on capital account, and instead of going into debt have accumulated a surplus exceeding $90,000,000. At the end of the Conservative administration they were $62,000,000 deeper in debt than when they started, and after eleven years of Liberal rule there is no appreciable addition to the public debt but a very substantial surplus, greater in amount than the Conservatives expended on public works in eleven years by $10,000,000.

Domain Squandered.

During eighteen years the Conservatives were in power they alienated no less than 29,000 square miles of timber lands, and of this immense area 23,000 square miles was granted without any competition, and without any payment of any kind whatsoever. In contrast with this not a single mile of

VALUABLE MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION

Recommended by a Well-known Toronto Doctor, Whose Love for Humanity is Greater than His Prejudice Against Proprietary Medicines.

The following very valuable prescription, by an eminent and successful physician, will be appreciated by many who are suffering from la grippe, cold, cough, pneumonia, or any throat, lung or stomach trouble, or run-down system, as it is a certain cure, and will save many a doctor's bill. It is almost a certain preventive as well:— "When you feel that you are taking cold or have chilly feeling or aching in any part of the body or head, or feel weak, tired, dizzy, unfit for work, pain in the head or back of the neck, do not neglect these dangerous symptoms, but send immediately to your druggist and get a bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen), and prepare as follows:

"Psychine, 2 teaspoonfuls.
"Sherry, whisky or water, 2 teaspoonfuls.

"Choice of the latter can be made according to the judgment and preference of the patient.

"Mix thoroughly and take regularly before each meal and at bedtime."

This prescription has been used in thousands of cases and has been so universally successful that a number of leading physicians regularly prescribe Psychine in their practice for any of the above troubles, or any run-down, wasting or constitutional difficulty. It is the most reliable and valuable home remedy. It tones up the entire system, giving a feeling of youthfulness and vigor, adding many years to the life of those who use it.

"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck and was suffering with lung troubles. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my physician, I procured another one who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising beyond description the effect it had. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my housework again. There are no symptoms of consumption about me now."

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Grand Trunk Pacific.

This great Government work goes on apace. An unbroken stretch of 430 miles of grading on the Grand Trunk Pacific from Portage la Prairie to Saskatoon is now completed. Three-quarters of this distance is traversed by the steel, and the track laying gangs are rushing the work on the last hundred miles, and by the new year this whole division will practically be ready for traffic. Three hundred and fifty miles yet remain before Edmonton is reached, and sixty per cent of this is graded.

The Government is redeeming the pledge to complete the Trans Canada, and recently let a contract for the first section, being all that portion extending from the Bay of Quinte until the second section is met with. The contract involves the sum of $870,000, and when finished will mean the beginning of the end of that great waterway. Work on other sections of this great canal is under way. The next contract to be let will be that of the Rideau section, between Cameron and Bel'sau Lakes and west of Penson Falls.

And half of the remainder is the fastest work along the whole route, and it will be completed early in the new year.

Keep the Rascals Out.

Against their black record of political crimes and reckless disregard of public interest, the Conservative party makes no plea, excepting to be taken again into public favor. Many attempts have been made to discredit the Liberal administration, but no charge coming from the Conservative party is entitled to any consideration. It is the custom of the guilty to accuse the innocent, thereby seeking to hide their own delinquencies.

What Electors Want Do.

The people of Canada are not prepared to place in power a party which would make advisers of illis Expediency men who find their pockets by speculating with the fands of widows and orphans.

The electors will not vote for a party one of the prominent leaders of which distinguished himself in the infamous "nest of traitors."

The business men of Canada will not support a party that brings it to power as Finance Minister one who ran the country in debt $12,000,000 during his brief term of office.

Honest men will be opposed to a party which has as leaders the originator of Haggard's ditch, and the men who upon all occasions raise the cry of race and religious prejudice. Canadian people cannot accept the

When words have been selected for a dictionary, several distinct things must be done with them. They must be divided into their proper syllables, and the right syllables must be supplied with accents. They must be pronounced by the use of certain arbitrary signs used in a respelling of them to indicate the powers of the letters they contain. They must be defined in all the senses in which they have actually been found used in literature. In the case of a primary form the origin of the word in other languages—that is, its etymology—must be given.—Chicago News.

A SWORDFISH DUEL

Two of the Monsters in a Vicious and Deadly Battle.

The big swordfish had reached the blue waters of the ocean when without warning a blue backed torpedo-like body shot out of the depths, coming at it like an arrow.

The swordfish tipped intuitively, and a sword grazed its head as a big, thickset member of its own family swept through the waters above it.

The two fish turned and came at each other like mad bulls. Again by some miracle they missed, just grazing one another, to whirl about and begin the circling play for time and opportunity.

Then, like flashes of light, they turned and came on with a strange whistling sound and a compact that tossed the white churned spume high in the air—came together as only bodies weighing 200 or 300 pounds can when impelled by animate vibrant engines of unknown power—came together and remained there, whirling, tossing tails in air, rolling over and over. The long slender fish had pierced the other, and the terrific efforts on the part of the fish were to unsheath the sword, which was only accomplished after a struggle for several minutes.

Then both fishes shot away, then again came together, giving mighty side blows, and then out of the red stained water one broke and fled.

The writer found the largest of these fishes a few days later on the sand, where it had been washed or thrown by the waves. Four or five deep wounds marked the body.

In one rush the sword had entered the eye, coming out at the gills; another cut a furrow along the top of the head, another still had entered slightly from below, but the real cause for defeat was evident in its sword, which was splintered and broken against its enemy.—Recreation.

The Truth Anyway.

A teacher in a tenement district hurried from the school to find the mother of a pupil who had been taken quite ill.

"Can you show me where Mrs. Angelo Scandale lives?" she inquired of a cherub transplanted from the sunny south to a dark, sunless alley.

"Yes, teach," I show you," and a willing, sticky hand dragged her on with such speed as to make her stumble over an Italian dame seated on the threshold.

After the teacher's breathless flight toward the clouds the little hand stopped tugging.

"There where Mees Scandale live," indicated the horizontal arm and finger, "but she downstairs sitting on the step," finished the smiling lips.—Harper's Magazine.

TRIALS OF THE RICH.

Financial Prosperity and Its Worries and Perplexities.

Once upon a time a young man and a girl loved each other fondly. He was poor, but bright, energetic and persevering. She was pretty, cheerful and amiable. They married. Their friends thought they might have waited until their prospects were better, but they laughed prudence to scorn.

Two years after the marriage the wife met one of her friends.

"How are you getting along?" asked the friend.

"Very nicely," said the wife, beaming. "My husband is so good, and I have such a lovely baby. And, just think, we have $1,000 in the bank, and we don't owe a cent to anybody."

Five years later the friend met her again.

"I hear you are doing very well," she said. "Some one told me your husband had $10,000 invested in real estate."

"Why, yes," said the wife, "but it's such a worry. There are repairs and taxes and interest on mortgages, and one of the tenants has just moved out owing us a whole month's rent. Isn't it a shame?"

Five years more elapsed, and again the friend met her.

"They tell me you're growing rich," she said.

"Ye-es, but I'm anxious about the stock market. My husband has $50,000 in stocks, and he thinks they're going up, but I'm not so sure about it. Indeed, I didn't sleep a wink last night."

Five years later—another meeting.

"From what I hear your husband will soon be a millionaire."

"Oh, I don't know," said the wife. "He hasn't more than half a million yet. And it is so tied up in all sorts of investments—one never knows how they will turn out. I just wish we had enough to put the money in government bonds so that we wouldn't have to worry. But of course the income from half a million in government bonds wouldn't be enough to make both ends meet. And yet, do you know, some people have such absurd notions about the amount of money we have! One crank has even sent a letter to my husband threatening to shoot him just because he is rich. I declare, sometimes I'm so worried I don't know what to do."

It would be pleasant to give this story a happy ending, but that isn't the kind it had. This lady's wealth continued to increase as long as she lived, and she never ceased to be uneasy except in those brief intervals when she forgot all about it.—Bohe-

Happy Returns to Sir Wilfrid.

All Canada on Wednesday, November 20th, extended congratulations to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on attaining his sixty-sixth birthday. This great French-Canadian statesman entered public life in 1871 as member for Drummond and Arthabaska. In 1887 he was chosen as the leader of the Liberal party, and in 1896 he led his party to victory. For the dignity of Canada, for the well-being of her teeming millions, for the furtherance of honest and economical government, all will unite in the hope that this brilliant statesman will long be spared to lead his party to greater conquests, and guide Canadian public affairs with the industry and wisdom which has distinguished his administration for the past eleven years.

MAKING A DICTIONARY.

The Colossal Task of Selecting the Words to Be Used.

One of the men who compiled a big dictionary talks as follows about the way the work was done:

From the largest dictionary of the language all the words were diligently copied, and then each of the smaller dictionaries was checked off in turn against this growing list. When the dictionaries had been thus exhausted all the living authors of works that had an undoubted standard value were secured to contribute from their works such words as they had used that were not found in the general dictionaries.

In addition to this, the services of about 500 readers were utilized, among whom was distributed all the standard literature from Chaucer to the present time. These readers were instructed to report such words as seemed to be new and not found in the ordinary dictionaries and to locate them by page and line that they might be inspected, each in its own context. For this purpose prepared blanks were furnished. Specialists in various trades, arts and professions were also invited to send such words belonging to the technique of their vocabularies as might be familiar to them, but which were not in general use, and so had not found their way into the dictionaries.

It will be seen that the collection of a vocabulary on such a plan, though there were many helpers, was a long and laborious task, involving a great amount of correspondence, which extended literally all over the world. Added to this was the nearly appalling task of editorial and clerical work, merely to sift and organize these contributions. It is not to be imagined that words so gathered could or should be all included. An organized staff of editors and philologists was required, who passed upon the eligibility of each word.

The conservative care exercised in determining the scope and limits of a vocabulary can be inferred from the fact that in one of these offices, after a "dragnet" had gathered over 500,000 words, more than 200,000 were finally rejected. These included words that were still too completely foreign to merit a place in an English vocabulary, all the "used but once" words, considerable slang language and many technical terms that had good reason

THE BABY POST.

A Curious Institution That Once Flourished in England.

Although few people are probably now aware of it, the fact remains that there once flourished in England a regular "baby post," the rates of postage being fixed on a strictly business basis, according to distances traversed.

The curious institution came into existence in connection with the founding hospital in Guilford street. When this charity was first established, it was understood that its operations would be confined to London and its environs. But the people of the country towns and villages heard of it and showed a decided disposition to share in its advantages; hence the "baby post."

All over the country there were men and women who entered vigorously into the business of carrying children to London and depositing them at the gates of the founding hospital. The charge was 8 guineas from distant localities like York and Monmouth, down to a guinea from places situated within thirty to fifty miles of the metropolis. The unfortunate infants were borne on horseback in panniers, two to each pannier, or in wagons lined with straw, for which the charge was somewhat less.

Naturally abuses grew up in connection with the traffic. But, even apart from them, the mortality among the "posted" babies was terrible. Thus, out of 14,934 received at the hospital in four years, only 4,400 lived to be "apprenticed out," being a mortality of more than 70 per cent.

Eventually parliament passed a measure abolishing the practice, and the "baby post" ceased.—London Answers.

Euphemisms For "Mad."

In order to avoid the blunt word "mad" many euphemisms are resorted to in the English language. While "lunacy" refers to the supposed influence of the moon, "insane" simply means unhealthy; "imbecile" signifies only weak, and "crazy," meaning derelict, almost corresponds to the slang "cracked." "A tile off," "not all there," "a bee in his bonnet," are only a few of the efforts slang has made to carry off the sad fact with an uneasy joke. "Lunatic asylum," for the old "madhouse," represents not only a great improvement in the institution, but also in the term used to designate it.

The mole is one of the thirstiest of animals. It never burrows at any great distance from water, and at times of drought when the supply of the needful element is diminished or cut off the "little gentleman in the velvet coat" counteracts the scarcity by digging wells until it comes to a depth at which water may be obtained.

How Different Races Bear Pain.

Moaning and groaning as if she were being tortured to death, a colored woman sat in the accident ward at Jefferson hospital. "Don't wind dat bandage so tight, doctor," she begged of an interne who was skillfully putting a bandage on her foot; "you'll stop de circulation, sure." Wondering what dreadful calamity had befallen the suffering woman, a visitor asked another doctor what was the matter with her. He said nothing but a slight cut on the bottom of her foot. "Colored people always make a great disturbance over any physical injury," he added, "but the Italians are the worst. The sight of a little wound seems to upset them entirely, and they come in here shrieking and crying, accompanied by anxious friends and relatives also shrieking and crying, over the slightest cut or burn. Americans and Germans seem to bear pain with the most fortitude, and in general women do better than men."—Philadelphia Record.

Feeding Zoo Animals.

Not only is much care exercised in the choice of horseflesh, but when a carcass is cut up it is divided in such a way as to insure that in each piece given to the animals there is a bone. Otherwise the lions, tigers and other big carnivora would swallow the piece whole, which would be bad even for their iron digestions. The presence of the bone compels them to take bites at the flesh, which they pick from the bone with their claws and teeth, licking the bone afterward with their sandpaper tongues until the surface shines. For the smaller carnivora, such as polecats and weasels, and for the captorial birds, horseflesh is somewhat too coarse and pungent, so they are fed for the most part on the heads and necks of chickens. These parts are selected also because of the bone in them.—London Graphic.

Heart, Throat, Liver and Skin

DR. AGNEW'S FOUR FAMOUS SPECIFICS CURE COMPLETELY THE WORST DISEASES OF THESE PARTS—DREADFUL HEART DISEASE RELIEVED IN THIRTY MINUTES.

Heart disease will affect people differently, but in all cases it must be viewed with great alarm. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is the one remedy that can be safely depended upon in times of trouble. It will give relief in thirty minutes.

Mr. Thomas Petry, of Aylmer, Que., was troubled with severe heart complaint for five years, the pain, at times, being so severe that he could not attend to business. Every other remedy failed until he tried Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, which gave immediate relief, and his words are these: "I have now taken four bottles of the remedy and am entirely free from every symptom of heart disease."

A cold in the head need not be trifled with, for it is catarrh in an incipient condition, and catarrh is not to be trifled with. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, as scores of clergymen, members of parliament, and prominent citizens in the Dominion have borne testimony, drives away a cold in the head like magic, and where this has assumed the shape of aggravated catarrh producing deafness and throat trouble, it effects a permanent cure.

It is not always safe to take pills for liver trouble. They not unfrequently create other troubles that are serious. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills, whilst thoroughly certain of removing all liver trouble, give no difficulty either at the time or afterwards. They are pleasant to take and cost only 10 cents.

The faculty that Dr. Agnew has displayed in getting at the seat of trouble is manifest in his Ointment, as in the other three remedies. This contains the elements that give speedy and permanent relief in all skin diseases and is peculiarly effective in curing piles. 35 cents.

He Won the Breeches.
There is a proverbial phrase signifying that the wife is master in the household, by which it is intimated that "she wears the breeches." The phrase is both odd and common and is only half understood by modern explanations, but in mediaeval story we learn how "she" first put in her claim to wear this particular article of dress.

A French writer of the thirteenth century (Hughes Plancelles) relates some of the adventures of a couple whose household was not entirely harmonious. Sire Haines was the husband; Dame Anieuse, the wife. After a quarrel one evening Sire Hains said, "Early in the morning I will take off my breeches and lay them down in the middle of the court, and the one who can win them will be acknowledged the master or mistress of the house."

Dame Anieuse accepted the challenge. The battle was fought the next morning. It was a long battle, and it was bloody. At the end Sire Hains bore off the breeches, but the good dame had convinced the world that she was entitled to wear them in her own house.

She tried everything she could think of, but the boy grew steadily worse. "I cannot praise Fruit-a-tives too highly," writes Mrs. Cline. "I have tried so many different kinds of medicine for my son. He has had bilious attacks ever since he was three years old, and since he began to take "Fruit-a-tives" he has been so well." Men Who Can Control the Most Vicious Animal by Voice.

The horse whisperer might be an unknown quantity in England and Ireland today, but there are not a few men who exercise a wonderful control with their voices over horses which when the dominating influence is absent are apt to literally kick over the traces. In the thoroughbred stables of England and Ireland today there are not a few stablemen and jockeys who succeed in holding in check the vice in horses which in demonstrative manner show that they cannot tolerate the presence of the grooms or attendants.

Nimrod claimed for Count Duval a power and influence of the human voice over the brute creation, but that power was backed up by a lecture to the horse with "his clinched fist in his face."

But the horse whisperer of today avoids all gesticulations and trusts entirely to a combination of sounds or words. There is no bullying done, and the whisperer can face a mad horse with his hands behind his back and apparently at the mercy of the beast that has to come under the charm. One means of keeping remount horses quiet in stations during the South African war was that employed by the yeomen, who sat in a ring of head to head horses singing as loudly as possible and riveting the ears and attention of the otherwise sprawling and hungry animals.

One of the first whisperers to acquire absolute control over fractious equines was Con Sullivan, who migrated in his youth from Kilmallick, where he could trace his genealogy through a long line of snailers, and became almost exclusively employed by Lord Doneraile. The whisper of this man made an indelible impression upon any horse, bringing the pupil to a degree of docility unattainable in the ordinary course of discipline.

The race horse King Pepin, a famous racer, vicious and reputed to have killed two grooms at the Curragh, once came under his charge. He was wanted to win a race at Mallow, but when saddling time came it found him in one of his unmanageable moods. He reared, plunged and flung out fore and aft until he completely cowed groom and jockey. It was at this crisis that some one recommended that he should be "whispered." As it was the only chance left of taming him in time for the start, his owner gladly availed himself of it, though warned that horses were sometimes thrown into a state of stupor by the process.

Sullivan was soon found, and he was delighted at the opportunity of "fwhuisperin' before so much 'quollity' from all parts." "Show us the wild baste," he said, "and we'll soon tache him manners."

When he got within the circle—and a wide one it was—in which King Pepin was playing his antics he walked up to him, approaching the horse from behind. He mumbled some words as he walked which, though not quite inaudible, were as unintelligible as a sermon in the unknown tongue, but they had a most magical effect on the horse, for he stood stock still. Sullivan then patted him on the neck, while he whispered a word or two in his ear, whereupon King Pepin went on his knees and incontinently lay down.

The whisperer then stretched himself on him at full length, took out a pouch containing pipe and tobacco, flint and steel, struck a light and blew a cloud as he lounged on the stomach of this high mettled colt with as much composure as if he were seated on a bench in his favorite taproom. After two or three puffs he got up, beckoned the nag to his legs, saddled him and walked off to the starting post, the horse following and fawning upon him like a dog. He won the race in a canter.—London Live Stock Journal.

GRATEFUL MEN

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

Cystitis Entirely Relieved.

Miss Mattie McArthur, care of Hospital, Medical Lake, Wash., writes:

"I have not written to you for some time, but, Oh, I have given you many words of praise. I am so well. I had cystitis very badly and could not walk any distance without suffering intense pain, but I do not have a touch of my old suffering now. I can never praise Peruna enough. I am telling every one how much good Peruna has done for me."

Catarrh of Head and Throat.

Mrs. William H. Hinchliffe, 20 Myrtle street, Beverly, Mass., writes:

"I have taken four bottles of Peruna, and I can say that it has done me a great deal of good for catarrh of the head and throat. I recommend Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh. I do not think I ever felt much better. I am really surprised at the work I can do. I do not think too much praise can be said of Peruna."

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Napane, 26th Nov., 1907.

Council met on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Members all present but Mr. Lane; Warden presiding.

Minutes of last day of August session were read and approved.

The Warden stated that he had convened a committee to make out a report for the Government for County Roads. It was as complete as they were able to make it, and he was sure it would prove satisfactory to the ratepayers and the Government. The Government had acknowledged receipt of the statement of expenditure, and he feared the Government's share of the expense would be Accompanying this was an order from the County Judge, fixing Monday, 23d, Dec., at the town hall, Odessa, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the hearing of the application of the Township of Ernestown, for an order declaring the above named bridge to be a county bridge, to be assumed, maintained and be kept in repair by the County.

Moved by Mr. Aylesworth, seconded by Mr. McGill, that the matter be referred to the committee on County Property, with power to act, and report at this session.

From County of Halton, asking this Council to memorialize the Government to increase the grant to improvements on public highways, from one-third to one-half the amount of expenditure. Ordered signed by the Warden and Clerk, and

INVENTION
CULTURE

CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

- 60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee.

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. J. N. LOVE, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots), without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. MOORE, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the Evans Vacuum Cap is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the Evans Vacuum Cap will be sent, post free, on application.

The work in all the divisions was well done.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Council of Ernestown, claiming that Floating Bay Bridge is over three hundred feet in width. Also that it is used by the citizens of other municipalities. In view of this the County is asked to assume the same.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation even to very young babies. The whole some green leaves and tender stems of a long healing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a delicious plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by—All Dealers.

IN STRICT CONFIDENCE.

Women Obtain Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Help.

She Has Guided Thousands to Health. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Mrs. Fred Seydel.

It is a great satisfaction for a woman to feel that she can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only.

Many thousands of cases of female diseases come before Mrs. Pinkham every year, some personally, others by mail. Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence of women, and every testimonial letter published is done so with the written consent or request of the writer, in order that other sick women may be benefited as she has been.

Mrs. Fred Seydel, of 412 North 54th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"Over a year ago I wrote you a letter asking advice, as I had female ills and could not carry a child to maturity. I received your kind letter of instructions and followed your advice. I am not only a well woman in consequence, but have a beautiful baby girl. I wish every suffering woman in the land would write you for advice, as you have done so much for me."

Just as surely as Mrs. Seydel was cured, will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman suffering from any form of female ills.

If you are sick, write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helpful.

From 'County' of Halton, asking this Council to memorialize the Government to increase the grant to improvements on public highways, from one-third to one-half the amount of expenditure. Ordered signed by the Warden and Clerk, and forwarded to Government.

From Inspector of R. C. separate schools, stating that the 'special grant' $117.00 to Sheffield, and $6.00 to Richmond, the County will have to grant an equivalent. Referred to Education and Printing Committee.

The Treasurer stated that the County had exhausted its overdraft.

From E. P. Sheppard, Secretary Bath Public School, asking for grant of $190. to supplement a similar amount granted by the Government. Referred to Education Committee.

From Chas. Welbanks, Clerk Village of Newburgh, giving statement of money expended in that division, $58.74. Filed with Treasurer.

From Max Robinson, Municipality of Bath, statement work done on County road, $11.80. Filed with Treasurer.

From Committee convened to report to Government amount expended on County roads for year 1907, and road superintendents' pay sheets. This report was published in The Beaver last week. Reports received and ordered printed in the minutes.

WEDNESDAY—SECOND DAY.

Council met as per adjournment. The Warden presiding. Members all present but Mr. Lane.

Minutes of yesterday's session were read and confirmed.

Reeve Lowry reported that he was requested by the Warden to accompany the Government Road Engineer, Mr. McLean, to view the improvements on the County roads, under the late Act. That he spent two days in travel, taking in Richmond, Sheffield, Camden, Ernestown and parts of North Frederickburgh, and Mr. McLean reported the work well done. Adopted.

ACCOUNTS.

F. E. VanLoven, $35.00; T. S. Henry, $11.09; Rathbun Co., $10.00, paid.

A communication from Registrar Gibson, respecting abstract index for Township of Camden, was filed.

From County Clerk of Hastings, inviting the Council to be present at the opening of the new house of refuge at Belleville, on 6th Dec.

The matter of a County house of refuge was brought up.

Mr. Aylesworth stated that since the matter was last discussed in this Council he had changed his mind somewhat. He now thought that such an institution

EN^N WOMEN PRAISE PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. Ellen Nagle, 414 4th St., Green Bay, Wis., writes: "I have often heard Peruna praised and it is more widely known here than other medicines, but I never knew what a splendid medicine it really was until a few weeks ago when I caught a bad cold which settled all over me.

"The doctor wanted to prescribe, but I told him I was going to try Peruna and sent for a bottle and tried it. I felt much better the next morning and within five days I had not a trace of any lameness or cough."

Suffered With LaGrippe.

Mrs. H. A. S. Marsh, 2128 Reservoir St., Los Angeles, Cal., President Woman's Benevolent Association, writes:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks, and nothing I could do or take helped me until I tried Peruna.

"I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and I kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored, and I am glad that I gave that truly great remedy a trial.

"I will never be without it again."

Used Pe-ru-na For Bronchitis.

Mr. Frank Battle, Jr., First street, near Charlotte Ave., West Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I desire to say for the benefit of others that your Peruna has unquestionably cured me of chronic bronchitis. It is the grandest discovery of the age for throat and lungs."

Peruna is not simply a palliative to relieve some of the distressing symptoms. It brings permanent relief.

MRS. S. M. MORRIS

PRINCE JONAH KALANIANA'OLE

Malarial Fever For Several Months.

Mrs. Sue M. Morris, 2214 Patterson St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"Last fall a severe attack of malarial fever laid me up for some months. My condition was serious for a time and the doctor who was attending me did not seem able to cope with the trouble.

"A neighbor advised me to let the doctor's prescription alone and try Peruna, extolling its virtues to the skies, and I am now ready to do the same, for in three days I was much better and in ten days I was able to be up and in two weeks every trace of malaria had left my system.

"I now use Peruna off and on when in need of a tonic and it braces me up wonderfully."

"The Doctors Gave Me Up."

Mr. Lewis Kitchen, Hurlington, Ohio, writes:

"I cannot thank you enough for the good your Peruna has done me. About six months ago I could not leave my bed, and the doctors gave me up saying that I had consumption and could not live. Then a friend recommended Peruna to me, and I commenced using it.

"When I started to use your Peruna I weighed 117 pounds, and now I weigh 172 pounds. I had been sick for ten years, and was so sick I could not turn over in bed when I began the use of Peruna. I think it is the greatest medicine of its time.

"I am now feeling well and hearty and would not be without Peruna."

Prince Jonah Kalaniana'ole, Dewey Hotel, Washington, D. C., Delegate to Congress from Hawaii, writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your Peruna as a very effective remedy for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Weak and Nervous.

Mr. Charles Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes:

"I feel it my duty to write you a few words in praise of your Peruna. I have tried many different remedies, but have found that Peruna is the greatest tonic on earth, and a perfect system builder.

"A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion, and it cured me in a short time. I was very weak and nervous, could sleep but little at night, but Peruna cured that tired, all-gone feeling, and made me feel like a new man, so I heartily recommend it to all who are weak and run down. Peruna will give new life and energy. I cannot speak too highly of Peruna, and will not forget to recommend it on every hand. I will answer any letter from those desiring to know what Peruna has done for me."

Systemic Catarrh.

Miss Marie Lesser, 928 W. 36th street, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I am glad to give a good word for Peruna, and I hope that all who see this who are troubled with systemic catarrh as I was for years, will profit by it. I had tried many remedies, but none did more than give me temporary relief and some did not even do that. I took Peruna at the suggestion of a friend and was more than pleased and surprised at the results. I am now perfectly well and strong."

True Cause of Disease.

In these days almost every ailment is supposed to be caused by disease germs.

The medical profession as well as the people, seem to have gone mad over the germ theory of disease.

The universal fear and dread of disease germs is becoming a very serious matter to the welfare and happiness of the people.

Dr. Hartman has consistently contended through all the rise and spread of the germ theory, that most diseases are caused by climatic influences.

For instance, catching cold is responsible for more than one-half of the ills to which human beings are subject.

Danger of Neglected Colds.

A person catches cold easily, thinks nothing about it, neglects it, when it finally becomes settled in some organ of the body, and chronic disease is the result.

A few doses of Peruna in the beginning of the cold would have saved months of suffering, as well as great expense for treatment.

Peruna is a reliable relief for cold. Almost everybody knows this.

Instead of trying to dislodge or kill some imaginary germ, if Peruna was used at the proper time its tonic properties and anti-catarrhal qualities would soon convince the patient that he has found the right remedy.

A multitude of letters are received testifying to this fact.

Keep Peruna in the house. Use it whenever cold or climatic affections assail, and sickness in the household will become greatly lessened, if not entirely prevented.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

Mr. Christian Hofmann, R. F. D. 1, Slatington, Pa., writes:

"For many years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach. I was coughing day and night. After having tried three doctors and many remedies, one of your almanacs came to my hand, and I bought some Peruna. So far I have taken six bottles, and I have not suffered with catarrh this summer. I am cured and Peruna did it. I give Peruna to my children when they feel bad and you should see how healthy they are."

Nose, Throat and Stomach.

Mr. Delbert B. Craft, Lowell, Ind., writes:

"For a long time I suffered with chronic catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach. I would continually take cold and my stomach was in bad condition. I truly suffered untold misery. I took various medicines and tried the treatment of several physicians, but I felt no better. A friend advised me to take Peruna. I wrote to Dr. Hartman, who prescribed treatment. As soon as I commenced to take Peruna I was surprised at the relief it gave me. I kept on taking it until I had taken thirteen bottles and was cured."

The college girl smiled. "Do you wish me to prove it?" she said.

NEWBURGH.

For last week.

The football game arranged between Sydenham and Newburgh High School teams for November 9th, was withdrawn on account of the unfit grounds due to rain.

Miss Jennie Brandon, Tamworth, visited Miss Aleta Scriver, a few days. Frederick Moore has greatly improved his home with a coat of paint.

P. D. Shorey shipped a box of fancy Leghorn fowl to Wolseley, Saskatchewan, last week.

In the death of John Jackson early on Sunday morning, Newburgh loses one of her oldest residents. Mr. Jackson was born in Dublin, seventy-five years ago, and in his youth saw and heard Daniel O'Connell. At eleven years of age he came with his parents to Canada, where they settled on the farm, just west of the village on the Newburgh road, where Mr. Jackson lived until last January, when he moved to the village. On four occasions Mr. Jackson took the census of this district, and he also acted as tax collector and auditor of different institutions. For upward of twenty years, Mr. Jackson had been in poor health, for five years being incapacitated from work. The funeral services was conducted by Rural Dean Dibb, of Napanee, on Tuesday afternoon, and the remains were placed in the vault with Masonic ceremonies. The deceased was unmarried and the only surviving immediate relative is a sister, Miss Mary Cane Jackson, who has attended her brother for years. Thomas Bell, of Chicago, Illinois, arrived in time to attend the funeral on Tuesday.

Another death occurred in the village in the passing away of Miss Cecelia McKinster, sister of Mrs. M. W. Simkins, at whose home she deceased had been for the last six months, suffering from an incurable ailment. Miss McKinster was of amiable disposition and her early death is greatly deplored.

Canadian Money In New York.

The Canadian chartered banks now have $63,158,000 out in call loans in Wall street, of this amount the Bank of Montreal has $32,000,000. Owing to the peculiar conditions existing in the money markets, they are unable to accomplish the one particular purpose for which it is placed there. Usually quite a large amount is carried in Wall street because the Canadian banks find that under normal conditions they can call any portion of their loans and secure the desired cash. In the present crisis they have not been able to get the cash, as where they would call loans they would get clearing house receipts, and clearing houses have not had enough gold with which to meet these receipts. On this account the Canadian banks in their endeavor to strengthen their position, have not been able to realize on their call loans, and instead have been forced to cut down their current loans in Canada.

DESERONTO ROAD.

The Exodus, which proceeded North some time ago in search for deer, have returned home bringing four of them as trophies of their skill. All report a good time with lots of fun, the weather quite unfavorable part of the time.

Quite a number from this road attended the Methodist tea meeting in Deseronto, which was held on 14th inst, with Mr. Allen Oliver as chairman, who gave a brief account of his trip to the west which was much appreciated by the entire audience.

Mrs. Archer and daughter, from Deseronto, visited friends on this road on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leverton visited at Mr. Frank Reed's one day last week. Henry Alaska, who has spent the past season working in the States, is at present stopping with his old friend William Joyce.

Toronto, Ont., the Vice-President Mr. Robert Ness. Howick, Que., Messrs. G. A. Gigault, Quebec, Que., Arthur Johnston, Greedwood, Ont., and J. G. Rutherford, Live Stock Commissioner. Owing to illness the secretary, Mr. Westervelt, was unable to be present. The Hon. Sidney Fisher attended the meeting during the early part of the day.

Arrangements were made for the holding of the next convention at Ottawa, on February 5th, 6th, and 7th, next. These dates were selected so as to permit the breeders from western Canada and also from the Maritime provinces to attend the meetings of the cattle, sheep and swine associations, most of which will be held at the end of January and during the first few days in February, as also the Horse Show and meetings of the Horse Breeders' Associations which are arranged for the week following.

A programme for the convention was informally discussed but not definitely arranged. A number of subjects will probably be dealt with, but it is likely that the principal discussion will be on the advisability of amending the regulations governing the admission to Canada of pure bred stock. It is also proposed to take up and discuss the best means of retaining for our Canadian breeders the Canadian market for pure bred stock and it is probable that a number of specially prepared papers on this subject will be submitted. The future of our export trade in pure bred stock will also be discussed, while it is expected that considerable light will be thrown on our export trade in cattle and sheep for slaughter as also our export trade in meats and meat food products.

The fact that a majority of the live stock meetings are to be held immediately prior to the convention will render it possible for these bodies to definitely instruct their delegates as to the stand they are to take on the various subjects likely to come up for discussion. While this advantage will not be shared by a number of the horse breeders' associations, it is hoped that the latter will hold special executive meetings for the purpose of instructing their delegates to the convention.

THE BEST INSTRUMENT

Manhood Grows as Money Grows, By Putting It to Use.

"He that hath received two [talents], also gained other two."—Matt. xxv., 17.

There is something missing in the manhood of him who does not desire to make the most of himself. It is easy to misuse the blessed name of humility by applying it to sloth and stupidity. When a man is sighing to be nothing his prayer is likely to be answered before it is uttered.

Life is entrusted to us for its enlarging. Our business to-day is with the life that now is—for this alone we are answerable. At the end of the day the Great Master will not ask for our views on the life that is to be but for the fruits of the life we have had. The welfare and happiness, the prosperity and progress of humanity depend on the fidelity with which I, as an individual, discharge this responsibility of making the most of life.

Manhood grows as money grows, by investing it, by putting it to use. Few have become rich without saving, but none ever became rich by saving alone. It is not the life that is hoarded, protected, codified that develops most successfully; it is the life that is well spent that is best saved.

GROWTH OF CHARACTER.

Many expect character to grow in a hothed. They water it with tears, they protect it from the rough world; they assiduously gather and feed it the choicest mental and spiritual morsels; they measure its growth every day and record their observations in a diary, and they take particular pains often to pull up the roots to see that it is alive.

From such a course of treatment the strong life never comes. On the contrary, habits of introspection, absorption, in self-culture, produce only anemic, milk and water saints, flabby, useless, neuroathetic cumberers of the ground, and breeders of weakness and discouragement. Habitual introspection finds nothing worth inspecting.

The right method of culture is exceedingly simple—use to the full the life you have and larger life comes of itself. The muscle of the athlete comes not by the study of physiology but by the use of the muscles that he has. Men need not so many sermons on the soul as more service set for them to do.

Cease to worry about your growth and development, about whether you have a large soul or a little one. Take the tape line off your soul and off your head, too. Get out; get busy; do the next good thing that needs to be done. Keep your mind open for the larger things that will come.

Find a task for the best that is in you. Learn to do some things worth consideration of their profit, without thought of their utilitarian worth. Enlarge your life by taking other lives into its radius; take in the NEEDS AND CARES OF OTHERS.

One measure of a man is the circumference of the circle of his sympathies.

Don't worry over whether you are a one talent man or a ten talent man. It is better to be the one talent man with that talent invested than the ten talent man with his wealth tied up in a napkin. Simply go on investing what you have of love and sympathy, skill and strength, cheer and help in the lives of your fellows; your returns will be in kind—they will be seen in the enrichment of your life in the things within.

We need to learn the simple lesson of the fairest life this world has ever seen, the life that found its undying power in unfading glory by sincerely following the good and true, by giving himself away in deeds of kindness, in sympathy, in helpfulness. Giving one's life away is the opposite from throwing it away; investing it is finding and increasing it. Using all the powers in the best service we can find to do is not wearing the life away—it is the only way of saving and increasing it.

THE S. S. LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, DECEMBER 1.

Lesson IX. The Death of Samson. Golden Text: Eph. 6. 10.

THE LESSON WORD STUDIES.

Based on the text of the Revised Version.

The Story of Samson.—The story of Samson is recorded in chapters 13-16 of the book of Judges, and falls naturally into three parts. In the introductory portion (chapter 13) we are told of the announcement to the mother of Samson of the birth of a son, who was to be brought up from childhood according to the strict discipline of a Nazirite, in order that upon reaching adult manhood he might deliver Israel from the hand of its oppressors, the Philistines. The second portion of the narrative, which is contained in chapters 14 and 15, concerns itself with the marriage of Samson to the Philistine woman in Timnah, and the riddle which he propounded to the Philistines at the wedding feast. Betrayed by his wife, who tells the answer to the riddle to her countrymen, Samson returns in anger to his father's house, only to find upon his subsequent visit to Timnah that his wife has been given to another in marriage. This leads to a feud between Samson and the Philistines in which the former first sets fire

Philistines, remembering the reputation of Samson as a wit and practical joker, demand that the blinded captive be brought before them that he may make sport for them. Accordingly, Samson is brought out of the prison house, and placed between the pillars; and when the people saw him, they praised their god; for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hand our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, who hath slain many of us.

26. The lad that led him by the hand—Guiding the blind man from place to place.

27. The house—Apparently not the temple of Dagon, but a larger building conveniently situated near at hand. Temples in this early period were considered as exclusively the dwelling place of the deity, and not generally as a building in which the worshippers assembled for their festivities and merry-making. In 1 Sam. 9. 22, and Judg. 9. 27, we have indications of the custom of partaking of the sacrificial meal in a building separate from the immediate sanctuary.

28. Samson called upon Jehovah—Samson's devotion to the God of his people was, like that of his generation, of a primitive, though robust, nature. We note that he prays not for strength that the name of Jehovah may be exalted in the eyes of the Philistines, but that by the death of many of these he be at once avenged, for the loss of his

30. Bowed himself with all his might—Putting both pillars forward and out of place as he did so.

More than they that he slew in his life—There is no specific emphasis placed

RISE OF THE SASSOONS

READS LIKE A TALE FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS.

From India They Went to England, and Now are Among the Inlmates of King Edward.

The tale of how the Sassoons came to bask in the sunshine of royal favor in England is as romantic as a chapter from the Arabian Nights, writes a London correspondent. One member of the family, Arthur Sassoon, has just enjoyed the honor of entertaining his majesty at Tulchan Lodge in Scotland—and not for the first time, either. There is no more striking example of the power of wealth to carry one to the pinnacle of social eminence than that furnished by the Sassoons.

Abdallah Sassoon, the father of Arthur Sassoon, was a Bagdad Jew. For ages the family had been settled at Bagdad. They had the Semitic talent for making money and keeping it and transmitted the gift to their posterity. As merchants, bankers and financiers they waxed rich, generation after generation. The size of Abdallah's pile aroused the envy of his Mohammedan neighbors; They formed a plot to murder him and loot his property. Abdallah got wind of it. Hastily gathering together what valuables he could carry, he fled with his family to Bombay, abandoning perforce much of his possessions.

Bombay or Bagdad—it was all the same to this genius for making money. The Parsees—refugees, too, originally from Mohammedan persecution in Persia—had, even at that time, cornered most of the lucrative businesses in Bombay. They resented Abdallah's intrusion on their pet preserve. They tried to crowd him out. But Abdallah proved more than a match for them. He stuck and was soon making money

FASTER THAN ANY OF THEM.

But though he had changed his habit he still clung obstinately to his patriarchal mode of life; and insisted that all the members of his family should retain the ancient Hebrew costume. Not until the breaking out of the mutiny did he consent to let them wear European clothes. "Let them see what side you are on," he remarked, as he gave them leave to adopt the sombre garb of Western civilization. He used to sit on a dais in the spacious hall where his business was transacted. With his flowing beard, turban and robes he was an imposing sight. No one ventured to speak to him unnecessarily. In his own house he exacted all the deference that is usually accorded only to royalty.

At Abdallah's house in Bombay, one of Arthur Sassoon's sisters, Aziza Sassoon, was married. When one of her nephews was married later on, King Edward, then Prince of Wales, attended the wedding. The description, given by an eyewitness, of Aziza's marriage reception is worth recalling.

"The girl—she was only sixteen years old—was seated on a kind of throne, in the upper end of the room, nailed off from the part where we unbelievers were permitted to come in order to view her. She was shrouded in a veil of white muslin, powdered with gold, and literally loaded with jewels. Long necklaces of pearls, strung and uncut jewels, and gold coins were piled upon her shoulders. Grouped about her were a number of old women who sprinkled her with rose water and chanted continually in a sort of mournful recitative—presumably blessings and wishes for the future joy. The wedding breakfast was conducted on original lines. We sat about the room in groups, and the servants came in with dishes of savory meats and sweets. We had no plates, and it was a trifle embarrassing to take a bit of this or that article was ready for his occupancy. He had mastered the art of making money, but not of getting enjoyment out of it. His Park Lane house was a miserably of ostentatious bad taste. Sir Edward wrought a great transformation in its interior and made it a fitting place for the entertainment of royalty.

Sir Edward has been a member of Parliament since 1900—a Conservative, of course. He goes in for imperialism and painting as much of the map of the world red as possible. There isn't much of the old Bagdad patriarch about him. If he puts enough money into his party's war chest, say anything from $200,000 to $300,000, he will no doubt obtain a peerage some day.

Arthur Sassoon, now that Reuben is dead, is the prime favorite of the King among the family. And Arthur studies to please the King. It was that which led him some years ago to lease Tulchan Lodge of the Dowager Countess of Seafield. Tulchan Lodge affords the finest grouse shooting in Scotland. The King can't eat Indian curry as he used to do, but he is still VERY FOND OF GROUSE SHOOTING.

Every fall he goes to Tulchan Lodge to get the pick of it. Portions of the estate are specially preserved for him. The King's heir, the present Prince of Wales, also pays an annual visit to Tulchan Lodge for the sport he gets there.

It has been a sore point with Arthur Sassoon that he has been unable to induce the dowager countess to sell him the property outright. But she has an aristocratic prejudice against parting with any of her family's ancestral acres. However, the fact that he only leases the property has not prevented him from spending a lot of money in enlarging the house and fixing it up to suit the somewhat exacting taste of the King.

His Majesty's rooms at Tulchan Lodge, so far as privacy is concerned, are quite apart from the rest of house. They constitute a spacious, elaborately equipped flat with a private hall. Over the entrance is the inscription, "King Edward the Seventh." The color scheme of the interior decorations was selected by the King himself at the request of Mrs. Sassoon. Tulchan Lodge is really as much at the disposal of the King as if he owned it, and the arrangement involves the substantial advantage that it costs him nothing. When he goes there, the house party, of course, is of his own choosing and includes his particular friends of both sexes.

The Sassoons have left Bagdad and Bombay far behind them, but they have always stuck to the faith of their ancestors. Even if the King was their guest at the time, his entertainers faithfully observed the Jewish Day of Atonement in silence, and fasting. And out of respect for their feelings, his Majesty's gun was silent that day and there was no slaughtering of grouse. "Seest thou a man diligent in business," says the Talmud, "he shall stand before kings." To suit these modern days it might be rendered: Seest thou a man diligent in spending money; he shall sit down with kings.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Interesting Gossip About Some of the World's Prominent People.

The Marquess of Stafford, who recently celebrated his nineteenth birthday, is heir to the most extensive domain, if not the largest rent roll, enjoyed by any subject of King Edward. More than a million acres in England and Scotland are under the lordship of his father, the Duke of Sutherland, while the Marquess of Breadalbane, who is probably the next largest proprietor in the kingdom, does not own half that amount of land.

Although Caruso, the great tenor, is to receive $2,500 a night for singing at the Imperial Opera House, Vienna, the amount is not a record. Mme. Melba, for instance, received as much as $10,000 a night for singing at the same place.

himself with the marriage of Samson to the Philistine woman in Timnah, and the middle which he propounded to the Philistines at the wedding feast. Betrayed by his wife, who tells the answer to the riddle to her countrymen, Samson returns in anger to his father's house, only to find upon his subsequent visit to Timnah that his wife has been given to another in marriage. This leads to a feud between Samson and the Philistines in which the former first sets fire to the standing grain of his enemies, and these in turn revenge themselves on the household of the woman of Timnah, Samson's former wife, whom they blame for their trouble. Thereupon Samson, single-handed, smites the Philistines "hip and thigh with great slaughter." Shortly afterward the people of Judah, threatened with dire destruction at the hands of the Philistines, deliver Samson bound into the hands of the enemy, but, exerting once more his great strength, he captures the ropes which bind him and again smites his enemies with great slaughter. The third division of the narrative records the attachment of Samson for Delilah, a woman in the Valley of Sorek, between Hebron and the Philistine cities to the west. It is this attachment which brings upon Samson his undoing. Having confided to Delilah the secret of his great strength, he is betrayed by her into the hands of his enemies, having first been shorn of his long locks, the badge of his Nazirite vow. At this point our lesson narrative begins.

Verse 21. Pull out his eyes. In accordance with the cruel, though common, custom of the times.

Gaza, one of the four principal cities of the Philistines, situated about two miles from the shore of the Mediterranean on a low hill, fortified by towers and gardens, and close proximity to the main caravan route from Egypt to Syria and the East. It is supposed that the ancient city of the time of the Judges lies buried beneath its modern sand hills, which are to be seen and between the present city and the sea, and which are gradually extending seaward as the winds from the sea carry the sand inland. At the time of the capture of Samson, Gaza was a city of great importance, as the capital of the Philistines, and the home of Alexander the Great.

He delivered him out of her hands. A common form of expression signifying the capture of Samson by the Philistines in Gaza in the hands of his captors.

22. The hair of his head began to grow. It is necessary to suppose some time to have elapsed between the capture of Samson and the feast mentioned in the next verse, during which time Samson's hair had again grown sufficiently long to enable him to use with his Nazirite vow to wear his hair unshorn.

23. The lords of the Philistines. Corresponding to the lords of Israel, the chief men from the cities of Philistine cities.

Gathered them together. Probably at Gaza, though the place is not mentioned. From the following verses, we learn that there was also a temple to Dagon at Ashdod, and from references such as Josh. 15, 41, and 19, 27, we learn that the same deity was worshipped in other parts of Philistine territory, as the names "Beth-dagon," House of Dagon, and similar proper names indicate. Recently deciphered Syrian inscriptions also testify to the wide extension of Dagon worship.

For they said . . . our hand. A clause in all probability not found in the original narrative, since such a feast of special rejoicing on account of the capture of Samson would scarcely have been postponed until his hair had again grown long and his great strength returned.

24, 25. If we omit the above clause and interchange the position of verses 24 and 25, we will then have what is considered by most commentators to be the probable original form and order of the narrative. Some time after the capture of Samson by the Philistines the latter celebrated at the customary season a great feast in honor of their god Dagon. In connection with this festival occasion there was great rejoicing, and when their hearts were merry the people were like that of his generation, of a primitive, though robust, nature. We note that he prays not for strength that the name of Jehovah may be exalted in the eyes of the Philistines, but that by the death of many of these he be at once avenged, for the loss of his.

30. Bowed himself with all his might. Pulling both pillars forward and out of place as he did so.

More than that they that he slew in his life—There is no specific emphasis placed in the closing verses of the narrative on the superiority of Jehovah over the god of the Philistines. This indicates at once an important difference between this and other narratives of the book of Judges, eyesight.

29. The two middle pillars upon which the house rested—No reliable representation of these ancient houses of the Philistine cities is at hand to enable us to give any accurate description of the shape and plan of the building.

The Judges mentioned earlier in the book were courageous leaders, who at the head of their tribe and nation delivered Israel out of the hand of its enemies, fighting always in the name of Jehovah. But Samson leads no army into battle, and does not fight so much in behalf of Israel as in settling his own personal quarrels with the Philistines. The trouble in which he is almost constantly involved, again, is not occasioned by Philistine oppression of Israel, but by his own unwise affection for first one and then another Philistine woman. The story, therefore, lacks the moral point and emphasis which the earlier stories of the book contain. On the other hand, it abounds in rude humor and accounts of practical jokes perpetrated by the hero, Samson, on his personal enemies. As it stands it may be considered as a typical bit of Semitic folklore, which was without doubt in great favor among the Jewish people. It gives us, moreover, a glimpse of a side of early Hebrew life and character not elsewhere represented in the Old Testament.

31. Judged Israel twenty years. This is the sum total of the information which we have concerning Samson as one of the Judges of Israel. We are not told anything regarding his capability as a judge, but we may surmise, from the lack of moral strength he exhibited, that it would be regarded by his physical prowess more than for his talent for justice that would incite respect.

CRIME DETECTING TO-DAY.

Different Methods Now Than That of Ten Years Ago.

Ten years ago detectives relied upon stereotyped methods of "discovering crime." Descriptions of the persons wanted were posted upon every police-station throughout the country, and that was considered enough. Now the system has undergone a drastic change, and the methods of the detectives of today are no less romantic than those of the generations of yore.

The Abbe Delanne vanished some little time ago, and the French police were at a loss to discover any trace of him. That he had been done to death was taken for granted, till a detective scoured the surrounding country with a hyena. These animals can scent a dead body from afar, whether buried or not, but in this instance the animal showed no signs of having discovered any such horror.

Then the police turned their attention elsewhere, and finally they discovered the missing abbot in Brussels, alive and well.

Another novelty in the elucidation of crime is the adoption of the method of compulsory confession. Recently a Paris detective suspected a man of a brutal murder, but the evidence necessary was lacking. Without hesitation, however, he accosted the suspect in a cafe and accused him of the crime.

"Look!" he said. "The third button is missing from your left boot. Here it is. I picked it up in the house of your victim. Confess!"

This was the merest bluff, but the suspect at once confessed.

"What is the most aggravating thing in married life?" asked Dorothy. "Sometimes," said the bachelor friend, "it's the husband, and sometimes it's the wife."

grouped about her were a number of old women who sprinkled her with rose water and chanted continually in a sort of mournful recitative—presumably blessings and wishes for the future joy. The wedding breakfast was conducted on "original lines." We sat about the room in groups, and the servants came in with dishes of savory meats and sweetmeats. We had no plates, and it was a trifle embarrassing to take a bit of highly spiced chicken off the end of a fork with your fingers, and eat it as if it were a wafer of bread and butter at afternoon tea.

ABDALLAH WAS A PROUD MAN.

He had a high appreciation of his own lineage. He would do nothing to carry favor with the Gentiles. Like a Hebrew patriarch of old he abided by the ways of his forefathers. But it was different with his three sons, Abdallah, Reuben and Arthur. To England they came. Abdallah had his name changed to Albert soon after they arrived in England—Abdallah being too suggestively Oriental—and bought an immense house in Queen's Gate overlooking Kensington Gardens. Reuben took a big house in aristocratic Belgrave Square. Arthur took a mansion in Albert Gate. Society sniffed at them at first, but society could not resist their dinners. Society really had no cause to sniff at them at all. From Abdallah they had inherited keen intelligence as well as wealth; and as far as gentlemanly behavior went old Abdallah had taught them more in that line than most of the scions of the British aristocracy ever learn. It was because they were Jews and Orientals that society did not at first welcome them with cordiality.

That did not worry the Sassoons. They put their heads together, made their plans and waited. And they hadn't long to wait, either. Just how they managed if nobody knows, but it was not long before the King, then Prince of Wales, had taken dinner with each one of them in turn. Society gasped, but sniffed no more.

THE SASSOONS HAD ARRIVED.

It was Reuben Sassoon to whom the prince was most partial. Reuben used to get up big luncheon parties for him. At those entertainments the talents of one chef in particular were always brought into prominence. He had been imported from India because he could compound more delicious Indian curries than any other man in the land of their origin. And in those days the Prince of Wales was very fond of Indian curries. As time went on Reuben Sassoon became one of the most intimate of his majesty's friends. Indian curries would never have carried him that far. Nor would his share of old Abdallah's pile have sufficed. But it is equally true that had he not been a very rich man, he would never have had the chance to make good with his majesty. He died a year or two ago.

Albert, the eldest brother and Arthur the youngest, were only a degree or two less intimate with King Edward while he was still Prince of Wales than was Reuben. It was an unprecedented thing for the prince to show such strong partiality for three members of the same family. Albert, the former Abdallah, was made a baronet through the influence of the prince. He died in 1896 and his son Edward succeeded to the title and the royal favor.

Sir Edward added considerably to his inheritance by marrying the enormously rich daughter of BARON GUSTAVE DE ROTHSCHILD. It was a very different sort of wedding from that of his aunt in Bombay, which has been described. It was the society event of the season. The King, then the Prince of Wales, was present. Nothing showed more strikingly how far the family had advanced since its flight from Bagdad some 60 years earlier.

After his father's death Sir Edward sold the Queen's Gate mansion and bought the showy house in Park Lane—London's millionaire's row—which has been built by Barney Barnato. Barney committed suicide before it subject of King Edward. More than a million acres in England and Scotland are under the lordship of his father, the Duke of Sutherland, while the Marquess of Breadalbane, who is probably the next largest proprietor in the kingdom, does not own half that amount of land.

Although Caruso, the great tenor, is to receive $2,500 a night for singing at the Imperial Opera House, Vienna, the amount is not a record. Mme. Melba, for instance, received as much per night for an American tour some years ago, and when she toured the States last autumn every night in the concert platform made her richer by $4,000. Mme. Patti has rivalled and excelled this enormous figure. For sixteen appearances which she made at Covent Garden, London, so long ago, as 1870, she received the enormous sum of $48,000, or $3,000 for each performance; but the eighties found her in America, where, as at New Orleans, $6,000 was her nightly fee.

Parisians have lately been informed by one of their most reputable journals that King Edward carries with him a tiny photographic camera, which is attached to his watch chain, and that while pretending to toy with this he snapshots the various personages and officials who are presented from time to time. The films, which are almost microscopic, are given over into the charge of an expert photographer, who enlarges them. The temptation to take a picture of a well-known statesman or a Court official while enjoying forty winks is sometimes too great to be resisted, and the collection which His Majesty owns is perhaps unique.

The Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, who has been staying in London, is by birth a British Princess, being a daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg. She is a handsome, dark-haired woman, and a perfect dresser; is clever, witty, well-read, and an admirable musician. She also paints prettily, especially fruit and flowers, and her pictures have been on view in London exhibitions. The Grand Duchess takes rank as one of the best sportswomen in Europe. She is a dead shot with gun, rifle and revolver; drives tandem or four-in-hand and when Grand Duchess of Hesse used to ride at the head of her own regiment. She was born at Malta, and hence owns the second name of Melita, but is known as "Ducky" to her family and intimates.

The Duke of Atholl, who is now in residence at his beautiful Perthshire seat, Blair Castle, is the lord of over 200,000 acres, including one of the finest deer-forests in Scotland, and the bearer of a long string of titles, for besides being a duke he is Marquess and Earl of Atholl, Marquess and Earl of Tullibardine, Earl of Strathgairn and Strathdairn, Viscount Glenalmond and Glenlyon, Viscount Balquhither, Lord Gask and Balquhither, Lord Balvenie, Baron Strange, Earl Strange, Baron Percy, Baron Murray of Stanley, Baron Murray of Tullibardine, and Baron Glenlyon. The dukedom dates from 1763. The third duke and his duchess disposed of their sovereignty in the Isle of Man to the British Government for $370,000. The fourth duke disposed of his remaining property and privileges in the Isle to the Crown for $2,045,000.

The Bishop of London is a strong advocate of the open-air life. In spite of his heavy duties he manages to spend a few hours on the golf links every week, and often plays tennis for an hour before dinner. Moreover, he never lets a year pass without going into camp for a day or two, with the London Rifle Brigade, of which corps he is the chaplain. Not only, however, does the Bishop spend as much time as possible out of doors, but he counsels everyone else to do the same. A short time ago he went to visit one of his clergymen who, it was feared, was suffering from consumption. "The Bishop looked at him and said, 'Consumption? Nonsense! What you should do is to get away from your stims for an hour or two every day. Get a bicycle and use it.' The parish, however, was a very poor one, and the cash was not available for a bicycle, so much was hinted to the Bishop. A few days afterwards a handsome new bicycle arrived at the vicar's house, with nothing whatever to denote where it had come from. There is more than a suspicion, however, that the Bishop knows something about it.

HOME.

HOME COOKING.

Pul Apple Skins in Mince Meat.—In making mince meat this fall try chopping the apples without peeling them. Not only will you save time and apples, but the mince meat will be improved.

Pigs in Blankets.—The following makes a delicious luncheon dish: Take as many oysters as desired, preferably large ones. Drain; wrap each oyster in a slice of breakfast bacon. Fasten with a toothpick and drop in hot lard. Remove when a golden brown and serve immediately.

Variety to Standard Sauce.—Equal parts of apples and cranberries make good sauce, sweetened to taste. If liked, a delicious jelly may be made by straining and adding same amount of sugar as juice; boil a few minutes and pour into mold or dish.

Simple Desert.—Scald one quart of milk. Beat an egg and add to it one scant cup of sugar, five tablespoons of corn starch, five tablespoons of grated chocolate, one cup of cold milk. Mix all together and add to the hot milk, stirring till thick. Add one-fourth of a teaspoon of vanilla. In the interval slice thinly or chop two or three bananas, place in dish, and pour custard over them. Serve cold.

Canned Pumpkin.—Take a medium sized pumpkin, wash, cut in half, and remove seeds and fibres. Place in the oven and allow it to bake until thoroughly cooked. Remove pulp from skin, pass through colander twice, measure, and take an equal quantity of sugar. Cook together for at least half an hour, or until a rich, dark color. While hot, fill cans and seal. This is best accomplished on ironing day, as the first baking must be thoroughly done. Seven or eight hours is not too long, but no watching is required.

Walnut and Celery Salad.—Take equal parts of English walnuts or blanched almonds and celery cut into small pieces, or our own native nuts can be used. Mix them together. Select some firm, round beets, all the same size and boil until tender; skin and scoop out the inside until nothing but a red shell remains. Fill these shells with the celery and nuts and put a generous spoonful of mayonnaise on each. Make a bed of lettuce leaves on each. Make a bed of lettuce leaves the centre.

Spice Cake.—Three-quarters cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of sour cream, one-third cupful of butter, one and one-half cupfuls (scant) of flour, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of seeded raisins, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon. Rub the sugar and the butter together, add the yolks of the eggs, then the sour cream, then the soda, which must be dissolved in hot water, then the spices, raisins and flour, and last of all the whites of the eggs well beaten. Before putting the raisins in roll them in flour.

Fried Chicken with Oysters.—Cut up a young chicken (after it has been cleaned) at the joints so as to have it ready to serve. Dredge with salt, pepper and flour and fry brown in butter or fat. Make a cream sauce with one heaping tablespoonful of flour mixed with one tablespoonful of hot butter, add gradually one cupful of hot cream or milk, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Cook one pint of oysters in one tablespoonful of butter until plump. Pour them over the chicken and pour the sauce over the whole.

Potatoes a la Flammage.—Cut some boiled potatoes into slices and prepare a sauce of one cupful of milk thickened with one tablespoonful of flour and with two tablespoonfuls of butter added, and mix with one cupful of grated cheese, a little cayenne, two teaspoonfuls of mustard. Line a dish butter, or stock, which will supply the want of a natural fat. In making puddings of rice, always allow three hours' slow cooking. It is a good plan to steam rice for curry, for if it is boiled, valuable parts are thrown away in the water.

The care of the piano is not understood, as a rule, and so a valuable instrument often suffers. Always close down the piano at night and in damp weather; open it on bright days, and, if possible, let the sun shine on keys, for the light prevents the ivory from turning yellow.

Shabby Velvet can be improved as follows: First brush thoroughly so as to remove all dust, then spread a damp cloth on a hot iron, and over this draw the wrong side of the velvet. As soon as the steam from the velvet ceases, it must be removed or it will scorch.

To Extract Splinters.—When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh, try the extraction, by steam, as suggested. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle, and fill it two-thirds full with very hot water, and place under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

THE CRIMINAL CLASSES

POVERTY AND CRIME ARE VERY CLOSELY ALLIED.

Only 4.35 Per Cent. of Prisoners Belong to the Professional Classes.

The report of the Dominion Minister of Justice for nine months ending March 31st, 1907, has been issued. It is interesting reading for those who are dealing with the criminal classes, and also for those who are dealing with the poor. Poverty is no crime, but this report establishes pretty clearly that poverty and crime—at least the crime for which we put people in gaol—are closely allied.

The average number of prisoners in the penitentiaries of Canada during the nine months under consideration was 1,423. Of these 498, or 35 per cent., are set down as laborers. The balance is made up of workers at many different trades, with only a few drawn from the callings that require the exercise of the brain to the almost total exclusion of the hands. Thus we have 2 attorneys, 8 accountants, 11 bookkeepers, 1 architect, 3 bank-managers, 31 clerks, to the credit of the profession, 1 school teacher; and, stranger still, 1 journalist. The total of those who make up what might be called the "genteel" occupations is only 62 or 4.35 per cent.

SEVENTEEN PER CENT. ILLITERATE.

Another evidence that it is the poor, chiefly, who get into gaol is that 17 per cent. of the residents of our penitentiaries can neither read nor write, and only 10 per cent. have the advantage of a good common school education. It surely requires no demonstration to prove that the poor are they who make out the number of those who have not the advantage of a "good common school education."

"It is illuminating to observe that only 30 per cent. were married, while 66 per cent. were unmarried."

ARE MOSTLY YOUNG.

The number of youths in our penitentiaries under 20 years of age is 156, or 11 per cent.; the number under twenty years of age and between 20 and 30 years combined is 787, or 55 per cent. Is this not sufficient to give us pause? More than one-half the population of the penitentiaries of Canada are under 30 years of age. In thinking over this phase of the subject it must be taken into consideration that it is not for the first evil act men are sent to the penitentiary. They usually go through a long preparatory course, and at what age did

ORIGIN OF FAMOUS HYMNS

HOW SOME OF THE BEST KNOWN WERE WRITTEN.

Doubts as to the Authorship of Some of Them — Most Popular Hymns.

Strange and pathetic are many of the stories connected with the origin of famous hymns. In some cases, however, fictitious romances have been built around the beautiful words sung in our chapels and churches, says London Tit-Bits. For many years it was believed that Cowper's "God Moves in a Mysterious Way" was written as an outpouring of the poet's soul in gratitude for the frustration of his attempted suicide in October, 1773. The fact, however, that this hymn has been found in a MS. in which the latest date is August, 1773, proves that it was written before Cowper's attempt on his life. Then, again, it is a popular belief that Augustus Toplady wrote "Rock of Ages" while sheltering from a storm between two limestone rocks in the Mendips. No proof of the story is forthcoming, however, and consequently it must be accepted with caution. But there is no doubt that the author of "Christians, Awake," John Byrom, composed that magnificent hymn as a Christmas gift to his favorite daughter, Dorothy, for he inscribed upon the MS.,

"CHRISTMAS DAY FOR DOLLY."

It was characteristic of the late Bishop Bickersteth, who wrote "Peace, Perfect Peace," that he always found it easiest to express in verse whatever subject was uppermost in his mind. One day he heard a sermon delivered by Canon Gibbon, vicar of Harrogate, on the text—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee," and shortly afterwards went to visit an aged and dying relative, Archdeacon Hill, of Liverpool. Bishop Bickersteth found the Archdeacon somewhat troubled in mind, and, it being natural to him to express in verse the spiritual comfort which he desired to convey, the Bishop took up a sheet of paper and there and then wrote down the hymn just exactly as it stands, and read it to his dying friend.

An example of a hymn being written to suit a certain time is furnished by the grand old favorite, "I Think When I Read that Sweet Story of Old." Mrs. Luke, the author, was very much impressed one day by an old Greek tune which she had seen the children of the NORMAL INFANT SCHOOL.

Gray's Inn Road, marching to, and while going home on the stage coach she wrote the words to suit the music on the back of an old envelope.

There are two accounts of how "Just As I Am" came to be written. One authority asserts that it was while she lay in great physical weakness on a sofa, the other members of the family being present at a bazaar in which all but the invalid were taking an active part, that Charlotte Elliott, the author of the hymn, wrote the words which have stirred the hearts of thousands.

On the other hand, the story is that a young girl was going to the town to choose a new dress for a ball. On her way she met a priest, who said she ought not to go. However, she went, but did not enjoy the evening at all, and returned home miserable. Charlotte Elliott for that was the young girl's name) went to confess to her priest all about it, and asked what she should do. He advised her to go home and tell Jesus all about it. "Just as I am," she said. "Yes, just as you are." She returned home, and on her knees composed that lovely hymn.

"JUST AS I AM."

The proofs, however, seem to point to

ON THE FARM.

THE BACON PIG.

Bacon hogs ready for the market should possess long deep bodies with straight or slightly arching top and straight underlines.

The shoulders should be fairly upright, joined closely to the body and rounded nicely over the top from side to side. The body should not, however, be any thicker through the shoulders at points more than half way up from the underline to the top line than through points at a similar height situated between the shoulder and the ham.

The rump should slope slightly from the loin to the root of the tail. It should be of good length and should maintain its width throughout, which width should be the same as the body and shoulders.

In short, a straightedge laid against the side from the shoulder point to the tail should touch at almost every point throughout its entire length.

The ribs should spring out well from the spinal column, but should fall in fairly vertical lines once their greatest curvature is attained, thus making a deep bodied rather than a round-bodied animal.

The body should be carried on good, stout, clean, straight-boned legs, free from weakness at the pasterns and with square set hocks.

The feet should be strong and compact, the animal standing right up to his toes.

The neck should be of medium thickness with no tendency to coarseness.

The head should be clean cut and free from flabbiness at the jaw.

BUSY, HEALTHY BIRDS.

The great success with laying hens, as with chickens is to keep them scratching the greater part of the time. For this purpose some advocate the scattering of grain among the chaff or gravel in the houses and yards, but it should be done with discretion, for if all the grains are not picked up by the fowls it will do more harm by attracting rats and mice.

The dry system of feeding is recommended on the highest authority as a decided improvement on the moist food system. It is not only less expensive, but also a great saving of time and labor. It consists in feeding the chickens until they are a month old on small grain and seed, omitting all moist food. Chickens thus raised must always have a good supply of fresh water at hand with oyster-shell grit and green food finely chopped up. The chickens grow faster and are harder and stronger than those raised on moist soft food, diarrhoea, the chicken scourge, being almost unknown among them, or, rump, and they are more easily reared. Under this system there is a great saving of time and trouble, no waste, no risk of eating sour or dirty food; consequently an increased percentage of chickens raised and increased profit to the breeder.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Get winter quarters ready so the flocks are not left out in the first cold storm. It may take six months to overcome the ill-effect of one thorough chilling.

Corn is required in severe cold weather to keep up heat. While the calf is simply being grown, not fattened, care should be taken in feeding. A common mistake made, even by some of our most expert dairymen, is feeding the young calf too lavishly during its early life.

Bees will not rear a lot of young if the food supply is short; so in order that the colony may go into winter quarters strong in young bees, feeding must be done early enough for brood to be reared and matured in vigor before cold weather. Then, as the night's begin to be chilly and bad weather occasionally prevails, the bees become quiet and compose themselves for their long sleep.

While many dairy herds return an average income of $30 per head, among them will be found several cows that return $35 to $50 each, and some poor scrubs only $15 to $20. This latter class in one tablespoonful of butter until plump. Pour them over the chicken and pour the sauce over the whole.

Potatoes a la Pomme.—Cut some boiled potatoes into slices and prepare a sauce of one cupful of milk thickened with one tablespoonful of flour and with two tablespoonfuls of butter added, and mix with one cupful of grated cheese, a little cayenne, two teaspoonfuls of mustard. Line a dish with croutons, arrange around them a close row of the potato slices, and cover with the sauce, repeat in alternate layers, covering the whole with sauce, sprinkle lightly with grated cheese and very brown croutons, and bake in the oven for about twenty minutes.

Cranberry Jelly.—Boil two quarts berries in one pint of water until soft, then press through sieve; measure this pulp and add same amount of sugar; boil until it begins to jelly—when it cools on a saucer. Then stir into the hot pulp one tablespoonful of gelatine dissolved in a little cold water; turn into a wetted mold and set in cool place. Unmold and garnish with meringue made as follows: Beat the whites of three eggs until foamy, add one-quarter teaspoonful cream of tartar and beat until dry, fold in three-quarters cupful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful vanilla. Drop on oiled paper or press through star tube and bake in very slow oven for about thirty minutes.

Imitation Ginger.—To every pound of apples allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar and one and a half ounces of the best white ginger. Peel, pare, and quarter the apples, and put the fruit, ginger, and sugar in layers into a wide mouthed jar. Let them remain two days, then infuse an ounce of ginger and half a pint of boiling water. Cover it carefully and let it remain a day. This quantity of ginger and water is for three pounds of apples, with the other ingredients in proportion. Put all in a preserving pan with the water strained from the ginger, boil until the apples look clear and the syrup is rich, which will be in about an hour. The rind of a lemon may be added just before the apples have finished boiling. Be careful not to break the apples when putting into the jars. Serve in glass dishes for dessert.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

Cheap High Crown Hat.—Buy a large covered or felt frame cheap, raise the crown by adding two inches of buckram, and trim.

Prepare wood for painting.—By applying a very thin coat of glue-size; let it get quite hard before proceeding to paint.

Always Soak Onions.—Before cooking in warm, salted water for twenty minutes; and you will find the flavor improved.

Remove Jack Frost's Mark.—A cloth dipped in salt and rubbed on frosted windows will remove the thickest frost almost instantly; then the children can see out in winter.

The faded linen skirt will be difficult to get quite white, but by constantly washing it and bleaching on the grass, you will very much reduce the color.

Stains on knives should be rubbed with a wine bottle cork, using the smooth end; dip this into emery powder wet with a little methylated spirit. By this process the steel quickly brightens.

To Make a Bed in Small Space.—When the room is small or for other reasons it is not convenient to move out the bedstead pull forward the mattress on the springs and arrange the bed, then push back into position. This applies only to metal bedsteads.

To Harden Whitewash.—To half a pail of common whitening add half a pint of flour. Pour on boiling water in a sufficient quantity to thicken it. Then add six gallons of the lime and water, and stir together thoroughly.

If rice is to be a useful article of food, it should be cooked with milk, years of age, and between 20 and 30 years combined is 787, or 55 per cent. Is this not sufficient to give us pause? More than one-half the population of the penitentiaries of Canada are under 30 years of age. In thinking over this phase of the subject it must be taken into consideration that it is not for the first evil act men are sent to the penitentiary. They usually go through a long preparatory course, and at what age do they start who are yet under twenty years and have arrived at the penitentiary. This further illustrates the necessity of the work of the Children's Aid Societies. This stream of the youth of our country which is flowing into the jails and penitentiaries should be diverted near its source. Men and women, no matter what their positions in life, are a good deal alike, and this remark applies with greater force to children. The child of good parents can be made evil by evil influences, and the child of evil parents can be made good by good influences.

FRIGHTENED FISHERMEN.

Sometimes in Great Peril From Dangerous Fish.

Fishermen do not always have matters entirely their own way, even when sport is good. A man has played a Florida turpion for five hours, and then been forced to cut his line because night was coming on and a gale springing up. Two years ago, one of the monster, leaping tuna of the California coast towed a boat five miles out, and then it began to blow so hard that the fisherman was forced to abandon his fish and make for the beach. He would never have reached it had not a launch come to his help.

When one speaks of dangerous fish, the first that come to mind are the shark and the octopus. But neither of these is really formidable to fishermen. The shark never attacks a boat, and the octopus very rarely. The only recent authenticated case of fishermen being actually in peril from octopi was reported in December last. Off Marselles a fishing-boat was set upon by a number of these strange sea creatures which fastened on the side, pulling the gunwale down level with the water. The four occupants of the craft had a lively five minutes, hewing and cutting desperately with knives and axes. Not before they had chopped through a score of leathery tentacles did the squids drop away.

A much worse creature from every point of view than either shark or octopus is the so-called devil-fish—a large ray that is common in the warm waters of the Atlantic. These fish grow to a weight of a ton and a half, and, besides formidable teeth, are armed with a horrible barbed and poisoned spike in the tail. They have often been known to attack boats. In September last a party in a launch succeeded in harpooning one of these fish in the bay known as Arkansas Pass, Texas. The brute towed them eighteen miles out to sea, and twice very nearly upset the launch. It was twenty-five feet long, and weighed 3,000 pounds.

A very nasty customer is the green moray of Bermuda waters. This fish rather resembles a conger eel, but is green in color, and savage beyond any fish that swims. An English Marine officer, fishing off Bermuda a year or two ago, hooked a large specimen, and began to pull it in. His negro boatman, his eyes starting with fright, begged him wildly to cut the line. The officer at first refused, but when he saw the fish turn on itself, and with a crunch of saw-edged teeth, bite a large piece out of its own body, he came to the conclusion that it was not a nice thing to have in a small boat.

The true sword-fish is a dangerous creature. Sword-fish are caught for the sake of their oil and flesh, especially along the Atlantic coast of the United States. They are harpooned in the same manner in which whales used to be killed. Quiet enough until attacked, the sword-fish then seems to go raving mad and fights with unmatched ferocity.

girl's name) went to confess to her priest all about it, and asked what she should do. He advised her to go home and tell Jesus all about it. "Just as I am," she said. "Yes, just as you are." She returned home, and on her knees composed that lovely hymn.

"JUST AS I AM."

The proofs, however, seem to point to the first story, which is given in Dr. Julian's "Dictionary of Hymnology," being the correct one.

Dr. Julian, by the way, tells us that the total number of Christian hymns in the 200 or more languages and dialects in which they have been written is not less than 400,000. Germany coming first with 100,000, and England next. The most popular hymns, according to a census which he has taken, are, "Awake, my Soul, and With the Sun," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me."

DOG RANG TELEPHONE.

Operator in Exchange Heard Barks, Saved Warehouse from Burning.

R. M. Smart, proprietor of a grain elevator at Lima, Ohio, claims to have in Tuck, an ordinary looking fox terrier, the smartest dog in the United States. The dog has never been taught a single trick, but his powers of observation are so remarkable that his owner says he is in a class by himself.

The dog is left alone at night in the grain warehouse. One night fire broke out in a remote corner of the building. Tuck knew it was up to him to summon help, but his barks were in vain. Then he happened to think that he had seen his master go to a queer looking instrument on his desk and take off the receiver when he wanted to talk to some one at a distance. Tuck raced into the office, jumped upon the flat top desk where the telephone rested, and in his excitement knocked off the receiver. He barked and barked.

The girl operator in the exchange saw the light come on for that number, but could get no answer. All she could hear was the barking of a dog. But that was enough to tell her that something was amiss at the Smart elevator. She notified the police and a man was sent to investigate. He found the warehouse in flames. The fire department was called and arrived in time to prevent the place being destroyed.

This latter class should be weeded out; yet they are often kept year after year, simply because their owners do not know when their poor cows are. Weighing the milk of each cow and testing her milk once a month for a whole season with a Babcock tester, will show which are the best and which are the poorer cows. The Babcock test is a great educator, and its use will be found both entertaining and profitable by the progressive dairymen of this country.

FARM NOTES.

Make your boys junior partner in the farming business, if you want to keep them with you.

When sending eggs to market assort them, putting the dark-colored ones in a lot and the white ones in another, so as to have the kinds uniform. Some markets prefer dark eggs, while white eggs are preferred in others.

Make a cold chisel out of an old flat file for cutting off nails. Heat one end of the file in any fire to a cherry-red color and put a white heat. Then cool out one inch of the edge end in cold water. That edge end will then be as hard for a cold chisel. Watch the different colors of the steel; as soon as a straw color is seen at the edge, plunge the entire file into the water, and the edge will be hard and tough and will cut iron without breaking.

In any manufacturing, the first question is the cost of production, and every effort is used to cheapen production. One way in the dairy is to lessen the cost of food by using good business methods in supplying it. The price of food does not always bear a close relation to the actual cost of its production or to its feeding value. Ascertain what foods are best adapted to your needs, depending somewhat upon its cost. Then find out what will best pay you to raise and what to buy. Then get the most out of your food by feeding a well-balanced ration.

SLAVE TRADE NOT DEAD.

Thousands Employed on Plantations on Portuguese Islands.

Light on the slavery carried on by the Portuguese in Angola and the adjacent islands of San Thome and Principe was thrown by W. H. Nevison, addressing the African trade section of the Liverpool chamber of commerce.

He said that one-fifth of the world's cocoa supply was grown on the islands of San Thome and Principe.

The price of slaves had risen lately, which might account for the recent increased prices of cocoa. Slaves were too expensive to be altogether badly treated, but they are kept at work all day and beaten by gangers if they relaxed their industry. A large number of big dogs were also kept on the plantations to prevent the slaves from running away.

On an average 1,000 persons were shipped every year to the islands named, and it was estimated that there were at present nearly 45,000 slaves at work on San Thome alone. No case had been known of a man slave being returned to his own country.

After discussion the African trade section of the chamber sent a telegram to the foreign office urging the Government to take such steps as are in its power to abolish the cruel system.

The section also resolved that the leading cocoa firms in England, as suggested by Mr. Nevison, be asked whether they could see their way to abstain from purchasing cocoa produced in the Portuguese territories under notice.

"They've raked in a tough-looking lot this morning, haven't they?" said the stranger to the reporter in the police court. "You're looking at the wrong lot," answered the reporter. "They're not the prisoners—they're the lawyers."

A MAN'S REVENGE;

OR, THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER.

CHAPTER X.

Nevertheless, still believing in her old power to touch his heart, Sunbeam continued beating the door with her clenched fists and calling loudly to her father to come and release her. But with no other result than to make her throat and knuckles ache with pain. For his curses rolled up from the lower room, accompanied by Dan's laugh, which made her glance shudderingly behind her into the blackness around.

How could she stay there alone all night? What had she done to deserve such punishment? The thought of the proposed marriage was too terrible after all. She must get out of it at any price. The remembrance of those horrible kisses made her flesh tingle and her cheeks burn with shame. Despair renewed her strength. She redoubled her cries, and shook the door in a mad frenzy, pausing now and then to listen for movements from below.

Presently a chair was pushed back. Heavy footsteps sounded across the room, and stopped at the bottom of the stairs.

She held her breath. Her father was coming at last. His love for her had conquered his brutality. She quivered with relief, her ears strained to catch the slightest sound.

"Oh your noise," he bawled, his voice thick with drink. "You're there till to-morrow, when I open to find you in a better mood. Good-night, I'm off. Dan went some night you, so go to sleep."

Her heart sank like lead. She leaned half fainting against the door.

"Father! Oh, father!" she moaned, bursting into tears.

He shuffled noisily away. A door opened and closed. Footsteps and voices sounded without. They had both gone. She was alone in the house! Fear of the darkness, of the mystery shrouding the cottage, overwhelmed her. Even Dan, hateful though he had seemed before, would have been some protection from the horrors that now assailed her. She cowered back, covering her face with her hands. Somebody, something, was looking at her. If only she could get away! But the door was locked.

At the thought she dropped her hands and began groping about the room, trying to find a light. Perhaps when she could see where she was, she would be able to make up her mind what to do. Until then she was too afraid of the whispings of an excited imagination to think clearly about anything. But if only God would help her, she might escape whilst Dan was away with her father. They had perhaps gone to the Half Way House to get more drink. Therefore, she might have time to slip away through the window into the wood beyond.

Suddenly she touched a table, and uttered a low cry of delight as her hands felt on a matchbox. With trembling fingers she struck a light. The flicker revealed a candlestick before her. In another moment darkness had disappeared.

Her eyes turned to the window, and the thrill of hope that had run through her quivered away as she saw that there was no possibility of escape that way. For Dan, evidently expecting his captive, had cleverly boarded and barred the narrow aperture. Even with the strength of a man she could not hope to pull that barricade down.

The ready tears spring to her eyes. She was indeed trapped. The white-washed walls flamed her in unmercifully, not a chink upon them held out a her, and threw the key down. Gentleman Dan would recollect that he had dropped it. If in coming up to make sure that she was safe within he remembered doing so, he would probably search for it then and there. Perhaps he might open the door in spite of his promise to leave her undisturbed until the morning, for the silence might make him suspicious. Then, indeed, things would be bad for her and escape difficult.

Feeling sick with fear at the thought, she crept down the narrow stairs and entered the empty room. A fresh candle burned on the table; the air was heavy with the smell of spirits. The sight of the chair her father had occupied sent a sharp feeling of pain through her. She stopped by it. How he had failed her! How cruel he had been!

Realizing, however, that to pause was fatal, she crossed the room quickly and laid her hand on the door handle. Perhaps it was locked, perhaps—

The sound of footsteps made her heart stand still. For a second she stood petrified with fear. It was Dan! Dan was coming back alone, and he would find her there. What could she do?

Nearer and nearer he came, whistling softly. Then stopped below the barricaded window of the room he thought her in, and laughed. She shuddered at the sound. But it gave her the power to break the spell that bound her. With a sudden dart she sprang to the table, and blowing out the candle edged along the wall to the door. It was her only chance, and it might fail!

The next moment he stood within the room. In his surprise at finding it dark he gave vent to a low growl:

"I could have sworn I left that candle burning! I wonder if she has got away? But no, that's impossible!"

Nevertheless he crossed over to the foot of the stairs, anxious to prove his words. In doing so he left the door open, and Sunbeam plunged out into the garden. If he made the discovery now she had no time to spare.

Creeping noiselessly along the path, she dived into the wood. The sound of a closing door made her bound like a stricken deer. Was he within or without? Had he discovered she had gone, and was he just behind her?

She started running, glancing back fearfully from time to time. But no more ominous sound than that caused by her flight fell upon her straining ears. Dan was still indoors. The burning candle within her prison had done its duty. He probably believed her asleep and had not entered the room at all. For a little while she could breathe freely and need not hurry quite so much. Very soon now she would reach the village, and Aunt Hetty would shield her in her protecting arms. For she felt convinced that her father had not gone further than the Half Way House, and that she would be able to carry out her plans without any interference from him.

As she crept out of the lane and passed the inn, she looked through the bar-window searchingly. For the land had not been pulled down, and the light within was bright enough for her to distinguish each object clearly. Her eyes fell at once on her father, and for a second she stood petrified with fear, for he was facing her, his glass raised to his lips. Then suddenly his eyes met hers, and with a loud cry and stagger, he seemed to spring across the room.

Then Sunbeam darted down the road, running as though bloodhounds were after her, quite forgetting in her fright

Another Triumph in Canada

President Edward Bousquet Lauds in Glowing Words.

Mr. Edward Bousquet, 248 a Panel Street, Montreal, Can., president of Barber's International Union, Local 455, writes:

"For several years I have suffered from catarrh. I tried many remedies with little or no results.

"I was advised by a friend to try Peruna, and after using a few bottles, I am much relieved.

"I believe Peruna to be the greatest known catarrh remedy of the age. I cheerfully recommend Peruna for catarrh."

The truthfulness of Mr. Bousquet's statements cannot be questioned. He has given a clear and frank recital of his experience with chronic catarrh, and how Peruna helped him when all other remedies failed.

her, learn her trouble and help her, had been his sole thought. And yet, now that she lay within his arms, unable to explain her agitation, he felt utterly bewildered. For they were two miles from St. Lawrence, and after her imploring words, "Save me—my father," he could not take her back to Sea-View Cottage. Neither could he carry her to the inn, since she had fled from there. For no doubt the stranger she had alluded to as Gentleman Dan was sheltered beneath its roof. What could he do? What had happened? What had terrified her so?

The questions flashed through his brain in rapid succession, and his anger rose slowly as he recalled how wretched she had been all day, how changed to the Sunbeam who had brightened his life since his coming to the place. Bill Green was evidently trying to force her to do something very much against her will, perhaps to marry this Gentleman Dan she had spoken of in such a horrified tone.

"That she shall never do!" he muttered, raising her higher in his arms with a swift feeling of tenderness. Then his eyes fell on the light of the cottage his uncle had taken, and an idea sprang to his mind. They were only a few yards from it. He would take her and leave her there, until he had heard what had happened and what help she required. His uncle would not refuse to shelter such a lonely little girl, and if Bill and his friend, Gentleman Dan, were searching for her, she would be safe enough. For they would not dream of

AN EASY VICTIM TO CONSUMPTION

The run-down system is an inviting field for the germ of Tuberculosis. You cannot avoid breathing in the germs; they are everywhere—but a robust system is immune from their attacks. To rebuild a weakened system there is nothing that contains so much virtue as COD LIVER OIL, but the virtue is not in the grease. In fact the grease retards the beneficial action of the really valuable principles of the OIL by deranging the digestion.

In "BRICK'S TASTELESS" the grease is eliminated. It presents the valuable principles of COD LIVER OIL in a palatable form, combined with phosphorus in the form of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, the nutritious Liquid Extract of Malt and the Bronchial Tonic and Sedative Fluid Extract of Wild Cherry Bark.

and together, he and I, will save you from all danger."

She clasped her hands together nervously, and glanced round the room.

"Oh, if you could! But when they have found me they will make things worse. Yes, I know where I am—in the dear old Captain's house. But it is not far from there. They must find me here, unless I can slip away before morning, as I meant to do."

She stopped, looking inquiringly at Simmons, who had returned. Sinclair took a glass from the salver he held, and filled it.

"Drink this, and try to keep quiet for a little while," he said, bending over her soothingly. "You are quite safe for the present. My uncle is the soul of kindness."

She raised grateful eyes to his.

"How strange that he—the invalid gentleman—should be your uncle!" she murmured, taking the proffered glass from his hand. "Only a little while ago—although it seems years—when I passed here with father, I told him I did not know the name of the people who rented the place, and—"

"What did he say? Was he anxious to know?" he interposed eagerly.

"No; he was kind then. He said that, as the Captain had been good to me, even if the floors were made of gold, he would not want to enter to do harm. He was so kind that what came after seemed more terrible, because I so little expected it."

"Well, I'm glad he does not hanker to get in here. Also, that he knows you know nothing about the inmates. It makes you quite safe for the present."

"Ah! but I must waste no time. I must leave at once. I am quite well again. Fright made me faint, and I am no longer frightened. I must get home before father does. I must see Aunt Hetty. I must go away from the place as soon as possible."

"Go where?" he asked, drawing a chair up to her side and sitting down, whilst Simmons stepped quietly from the room.

"I do not quite know. But I want to run away. There are reasons why my father must not find me. And so, if I can get some money from Aunt Hetty, I mean to go at once."

"But you forget. It is late already. Where can you go at this time of night, my child?"

"I meant to walk to Olney. It is only five miles, and the morning mail leaves at three. And then— Oh, don't shake your head, Mr. Sinclair. I am not afraid, and I must do it. After what has happened to-night, I dare not meet my father. I know Aunt Hetty will keep my secret, but for her sake I must manage alone. You surely would not be so cruel as to prevent my going!" she added in a reproachful tone, her eyes full of tears.

her quivered away as she saw that there was no possibility of escape that way. For Dan, evidently expecting his captive, had cleverly boarded and barred the narrow aperture. Even with the strength of a man she could not hope to pull that barricade down.

The ready tears spring to her eyes. She was indeed trapped. The white-washed walls flamed her in unmercifully, not a chink upon them held out a glimmer of hope. She would have to remain after all and marry Gentleman Dan to-morrow.

oshrdlu shrd shrdl omfwyp shrdlu s She shuddered. Death even seemed preferable to that. Her eyes sought the narrow bed. Perhaps the murdered man had lain on it. Taking the candle she stooped to the floor, searching half fearfully on the bare boards for some sign of the ghastly deed.

As she did so she noticed that the door stood quite three inches from the ground, leaving a great gap beneath it. Her heart bounded. Excitement filled her brain. There was a chance at last! Perhaps she could pass her fingers under the door and gripping it, pull it open, bursting the flimsy lock. Perhaps she would have sufficient strength to do so. Albeit when she spread out her hands, examining them eagerly, her serenity ebbed quickly away. For they were so small! How in the world could they do such work as that?

Then, in a flash she remembered the fallen key. It was lying without. She might be able to feel it with her fingers and draw it in!

"Oh, God help me!" she murmured, stooping breathlessly and running her hand quickly along under the door.

Suddenly she touched something with the tips of her outstretched fingers. Her heart seemed to stop beating, for it was the key! Her prayer was answered!

Pushing her hand as far as she could, with no little pain to her wrist, slowly and carefully she worked the precious object towards her. After what seemed an eternity the key was in her grasp, and shaking with excitement, she slipped it into the lock.

The fear assayed her joy. Suppose that Dan returned before she could leave the house? Suppose the door below was closed?

She snatched the candlestick to the table, deciding to leave it burning. The streak of light coming from the doorway would reassure Dan as to her being within. She might be miles away before she discovered that she had flown.

For in that short time her brain had worked swiftly, and she had fully made up her mind that she would not marry Gentleman Dan, and must fly from her father's room to evade such fate. She would run away after seeing her aunt and getting money from her. She would be able to catch the morning mail to leave from Olney. It started at three, and the night was still young, she had several hours before her.

She opened the door, looked it behind with a bright enough for her to distinguish each object clearly. Her eyes fell at once on her father, and for a second she stood petrified with fear, for he was facing her, his glass raised to his lips. Then suddenly his eyes met hers, and with a loud cry and stagger, he seemed to spring across the room.

Then Sunbeam darted down the road, running as though bloodhounds were after her, quite forgetting in her fright that her father was too drunk to run quickly, if he had followed her further than the door.

Her terror gave her wings, for if he caught her now he might kill her. Her breath came fast and labored, her throat heaved, and her eyes started from her head as she plunged headlong into the dark mist before her. Where she was, and whether going, troubled her not at all. She was flying from real danger into the unknown. What might meet her was not half so terrible as what came behind.

Once she paused for breath. But the sound of footsteps behind her made her start off again with renewed energy. She would not be caught! She would do first! This runner, who, strangely enough, neither shouted nor swore, could therefore not be her father; he must be Dan who had discovered her escape. The remembrance of his hateful embrace upheld her failing limbs. And though the blood surged and hissed in her head, and her eyes seemed bursting from their sockets, she kept on. But her pursuer had longer legs and better wind than she. For he was close upon her. Looking back she could discern his shadowy figure. His appalling nearness made her stagger forward with a cry. Her feet caught in a stone. The next moment she lay beaten upon the ground. With a shudder she closed her eyes. Surely her heart would pant itself away! Surely God would let her die!

The man's hot breath was on her face. She shivered from head to foot. "Sunbeam," he panted, "what is the matter, little Sunbeam?"

She uttered a low moan of relief, for the voice was Duncan Singlet's.

"Save me! Save me!—my father! Gentleman Dan!" she gasped, half rising, and throwing out pleading hands, her eyes straining through the darkness to him.

He caught her in his arms as she swooned towards him, a merciful cloud of oblivion descending upon her.

CHAPTER XI.

For some seconds Duncan Sinclair stood with the unconscious girl in his arms. Long before he had overtaken her he had guessed that she was flying from some danger, but could not understand how she had appeared so far from home. He had been to Olney late that afternoon, and, as he reached the Half Way House on his return saw Sunbeam suddenly dart from it and run madly away in front of him. To follow his eyes fell on the light of the cottage his uncle had taken, and an idea sprang to his mind. They were only a few yards from it. He would take her and leave her there, until he had heard what had happened and what help she required. His uncle would not refuse to shelter such a lonely little girl, and if Bill and his friend, Gentleman Dan, were searching for her, she would be safe enough. For they would not dream of her having taken shelter so near to them neither would it do for them to know that he had found her.

He reached the door breathless, for she was heavy and awkward to carry. He smiled as he recalled sundry novels he had read in which the heroine, weighing as light as a feather, had been carried easily by the hero for many miles. Sunbeam at all events could not be added to the list of such anemic damsels, and he was certainly glad that he had not to carry her farther.

He knocked at the door. After a slight pause Simmons, the servant, opened cautiously. His face changed from utter blankness to astonishment as his eyes scanned the young man and his burden.

Sinclair smiled. "Let me in, Simmons, there's a good fellow, and tell Sir Ralph I crave his hospitality for this lady."

The man's jaw dropped. For an instant he thought that his ears misled him. Then, baid being stronger than nature, he straightened himself, and his features slid back into their masklike expression.

"Very well, sir," he faltered, still standing in the doorway. "But Sir Ralph will not be disturbed. He has just had his dinner. If you will allow me to suggest the Half Way House, I think—"

"The Dickens, man, am I to stand here all night? Half Way House indeed! Do you think my arms are made of iron? Let me pass, and fetch your master," stormed Duncan, pushing his way in as he spoke.

"Very well, sir, but—"

"No buts, Simmons; let me put her down, and then you can talk. Sir Ralph would not turn a fly away, I know, so don't put your words into his mouth. Come, be a good fellow, and open the door. I want a couch or a chair—something to lay her on."

Shaking his head disapprovingly, Simmons led him into a small room. With a sigh of relief Sinclair laid Sunbeam on the couch.

"Now then," he continued, "get some water, brandy, anything you can think of, Simmons. When she has come around, I'll listen to your objections. Don't look so crestfallen, either. I'll take the blame. I forced my way in, remember. Now hurry. She has been like this too long. I found her fainting on the road."

He turned back to the couch as the man obeyed with evident reluctance, then started as he met Sunbeam's eyes fixed on him wonderingly.

"Mr. Sinclair—what is the matter?" she asked, trying to rise as she spoke. He forced her gently back.

"You fainted, Sunbeam, that is all. You were running too fast, and—"

"Yes, yes, I know," she interrupted excitedly. "I was running away from father, from Gentleman Dan. Oh, where are they, and where am I? Have they found me?"

He smiled reassuringly.

"You are safe enough, and they do not know where you are. You fainted when I caught you up."

"Then you ran after me?" she asked, in a tone of surprise, trembling visibly.

"Yes; because I saw that you were afraid of something, and feared that, in running as you did, you might hurt yourself, or—"

"Lose my way and fall over the cliffs?" she whispered, her eyes full of fear. "Perhaps it is a pity I did not, for they will find me, and it will begin all over again." Her voice broke, and she bowed her head.

"Sunbeam, I promised to help you," ejaculated Duncan, taking her limp little hand. "Will you trust me, and let me do so? I swear they shall not touch you, that I will keep you from them. Already they cannot dream of your whereabouts. I carried you to this house. My uncle, Sir Ralph Freer, lives here, seven miles, and the morning mail leaves at three. And then— Oh, don't shake your head, Mr. Sinclair, I am not afraid, and I must do it. After what has happened to-night, I dare not meet my father. I know Aunt Hetty will keep my secret, but for her sake I must manage alone. You surely would not be so cruel as to prevent my going?" she added in a reproachful tone, her eyes full of tears.

BADLY RUN DOWN.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Came to the Rescue After Doctors' Treatment Failed.

The life of any constant traveller is always a hard one, but those whose work compel them to take long tiresome drives over rough roads, exposed to all conditions of weather, are in constant danger of losing their health. The extreme heat of summer or the piercing winds of winter sap their strength, the kidneys become diseased or rheumatism sets in. What is needed to withstand this hardship is rich red blood—the pure blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can make. These pills are the travellers' never-failing friend. Concerning them Mr. George Dalpe, of St. Eloi, Que., says: "I am a grain-dealer and am obliged to make frequent trips, sometimes very tiring. I returned home from one of these trips last summer very much fatigued. I was overheated and tried to cool and rest myself by lounging on the veranda till late at night. I caught cold, and the next day I did not feel at all well. I had a headache, pains in my stomach and was very weak. I went to see a doctor, but he said I would be alright in a day or so. So I started on another trip. I had not gone far before I felt very ill and had to return home and go to bed. I had chills, headache, pains in my stomach and kidneys. The doctor came to see me and he said I was overworked. He treated me for several months, but instead of improving I continually grew worse. I wasted away almost to a skeleton and really thought I was going to die. One day my wife returned from the village with a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She urged me to take them, as she said they had been very highly recommended to her. I did so, and by the time I had taken four boxes I felt enough benefit to decide me to continue them and I took about a dozen boxes. They fully cured me and to-day I am able to go about my work without feeling fatigued."

Fatigue, on the least exertion is a sign that the blood is poor. Replace the bad blood with good blood and later will be a pleasure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, red blood. That is why they cure anemia, rheumatism, kidney trouble, indigestion, heart palpitation and the nerve-racking ills of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW THE YOUNG IDEA SHOOTS.

Many children are so crammed with everything that they really know nothing.

In proof of this, read these veritable specimens of definitions, written by public-school children:

"Stability is taking care of a stable."
"A mosquito is the child of black and white parents."

"Monsters are the place for monsters."
"Tocsin is something to do with getting drunk."

"Espostulation is to have the small-pox."

"Cannibal is two brothers who killed each other in the Bible."
"Anatomy is the human body, which consists of three parts, the head, the chest, and the stummick. The head contains the eyes and brains, if any. The chest contains the lungs and a piece of the liver. The stummick is devoted to the beavels, of which there are five, a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes W and y."

Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.

The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.

The reason is that at a period when a girl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.

Russian Woman Confesses That She Killed Her Sister-in-Law.

Mme. Rasztzloff, the widow of a professor at the university of Moscow, was recently found murdered a short distance from her country residence, a few miles out of Moscow.

Mme. Terpinsky, a sister-in-law, lay in a fainting condition under some bushes not far away. When she had sufficiently recovered she stated that she and Mme. Rasztzloff had been attacked by robbers.

Mme. Rasztzloff, who was enormously wealthy, had died intestate, and as Mme. Terpinsky was her nearest relative suspicions were aroused that she had invented the story of the murderous attack.

Mme. Terpinsky has now confessed that she committed the crime, and is in prison awaiting trial.

A PROSPEROUS COLONY.

In the State of Victoria, Australia, the railway revenue for 1907 fiscal year was $20,050,000, the highest on record, while the working expenses were less than 52 per cent. of the revenue, the lowest for twenty-eight years. The number of savings bank depositors increased by 25,000. Forty per cent. of the entire population has deposits. The amount at their credit on June 30 last was $34,900,000, an increase for the year of $5,140,000. Overseas exports exclusive of gold, amounted to $62,000,000, an increase of 250 per cent. over 1908. The colony's overseas imports amounted to $75,000,000. The exports to other States were nearly $25,000,000. The Government revenue for the year was $41,565,000, and the expenditure only $37,505,000, creating a surplus of $4,060,000.

HELP YOUR BABY.

No mother can expect her little ones to escape all the minor ailments of childhood, but she can be reasonably sure that her child will be healthy if she gives it an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. And she can feel absolutely safe in giving this medicine, as she has the guarantee of a government analyst that it contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. C. A. PASS RECIPE AROUND

TELLS HOW TO MAKE THIS SIMPLE RHEUMATISM CURE.

Prescription Given Which Sufferers of Dread Disease Can Make Up and Try at Home at Small Cost.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karger's, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from any druggist in the smaller towns, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Montreal morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and tortuous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it you want it badly.

BEER* IS GOOD FOR MOST FOLKS (HARDLY ANOTHER BEVERAGE FEEDS SO WELL)

BEER really excels milk as a food-drink for most grown people. And many, many people cannot digest milk easily, because it is so lacking in solid food-contents.

Moreover, milk is so liable to contagion that it is seldom pure when we get it in the cities. But Ontario-brewed beer is really pure,—brewed in cleanliness, of sound materials, in a sanitary way, and brought to the user in the same fit-to-drink state.

Beer Is No Stimulant

Drink beer with meals and at bedtime, as an item of diet that will help the stomach do its work better, and will feed the body besides. Don't choose beer as a stimulant, though,—it does not contain enough alcohol for that. Use it as a food-drink that induces lazy stomachs to do their work well, and so helps them get more good out of all food.

Beer Makes Better Nerves

Ontario beer is not only deliciously appetizing and refreshing, because brewed of pure malt and hops only; but, besides, all the power that hops possess to repair nerve wastes is kept in these brews. That is what makes beer so particularly good for women to drink regularly. Ask your own doctor what he thinks of beer for your household.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water.

MURDERED FOR A FORTUNE.

Russian Woman Confesses That She Killed Her Sister-in-Law.

Mme. Rasztretoff, the widow of a professor at the university of Moscow, was recently found murdered a short distance from her country residence, a few miles out of Moscow.

Mme. Terpinsky, a sister-in-law, lay in a fainting condition under some bushes not far away. When she had sufficiently recovered she stated that she and Mme. Rasztretoff had been attacked by robbers.

Mme. Rasztretoff, who was enormously wealthy, had died intestate, and as Mme. Terpinsky was her nearest relative suspicions were aroused that she had invented the story of the murderous attack.

Mme. Terpinsky has now confessed that she committed the crime, and is in prison awaiting trial.

A PROSPEROUS COLONY.

In the State of Victoria, Australia, the railway revenue for 1907 fiscal year was $20,050,000, the highest on record, while the working expenses were less than 52 per cent. of the revenue, the lowest for twenty-eight years. The number of savings bank depositors increased by 25,000. Forty per cent. of the entire population has deposits. The amount at their credit on June 30 last was $34,600,000, an increase for the year of $5,140,000. Overseas exports exclusive of gold, amounted to $62,000,000, an increase of 250 per cent. over 1908. The colony's overseas imports amounted to $75,000,000. The exports to other States were nearly $25,000,000. The Government revenue for the year was $41,565,000, and the expenditure only $37,505,000, creating a surplus of $4,060,000.

HELP YOUR BABY.

No mother can expect her little ones to escape all the minor ailments of childhood, but she can be reasonably sure that her child will be healthy if she gives it an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. And she can feel absolutely safe in giving this medicine, as she has the guarantee of a government analyst that it contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. Uria Cressman, New Hamburg, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles and constipation with the greatest success. I always feel safe when I have a box of Tablets in the house." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EVIDENCE ENOUGH.

"Tell me, brother, is it possible to let Robert know that I am an heiress?" "Has he proposed to you?" "Yes." "Well, you may be sure he knows it already."

MOTHER'S SACRIFICE.

Every mother knows how fretful the little ones are when they develop mumps, and the many nights rest she is called upon to sacrifice.

Mrs. S. A. Hammond, of Minico, says: "My three children have had the mumps, and I used Zam-Buk for all of them with excellent results. Zam-Buk did my children a world of good, and will always keep it handy as a household remedy. I would recommend it to all mothers, and think that no home should be without it."

Zam-Buk cures Cuts, Burns, Chapped Hands, Ringworm, Sprains, Bad Legs, Bells, Ulcers, Running Sores, Scalp Irritation, Poisoned Wounds, Piles blind and bleeding, Abscesses, Eczema, etc. Of all stores and druggists 50 cents a box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on re-

COULDN'T GET AT IT.

An Irishman who had just united with the Catholic church in a small town was careless enough to let the priest catch him coming out of a saloon with a jug under his arm. The priest waited for him to come by and said:

"Pat, what is it you have in that jug?"

"Whiskey, sor," answered Pat.

"Whom does it belong to?" asked the good man.

"To me and me brudder Moike, sor."

"Well, say, Pat, pour yours out, and be a good man."

"I can't, sor; mine's on the bottom," answered Pat.

PASS RECIPE AROUND

TELLS HOW TO MAKE THIS SIMPLE RHEUMATISM CURE.

Prescription Given Which Sufferers of Dread Disease Can Make Up and Try at Home at Small Cost.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from any druggist in the smaller towns, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription, states a well-known authority in a Montreal morning paper, forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and tortuous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it you want it badly.

MISTAKES THIS TIME.

Doctor: "I diagnose all sicknesses from the patient's eyes. Now, your right eye tells me that your kidneys are affected."

Patient: "Excuse me, doctor, but my right is a glass eye."

How to Cleanse the System.—Purges Vegetable Pills are the result of scientific study of the effects of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the liver and the kidneys, purify the blood, and carry off all morbid accumulations from the system. They are easy to take, and their action is mild and beneficial.

Magistrate: "I hope I shall not see you here again." Old Offender: "Not see me here again! Why you ain't going to resign your office, are you?"

WE CLAIM that "The D & L" Menthol Plaster will cure Lumbago, Backache, Sciatica or Neuralgia. Pains quicker than any other plaster. Recommended by everybody.

FEELING WORDS.

"You can never tell," observed Uncle Allen Sparks, "what lasting results may be accomplished by an earnest word spoken at the right time. Many a man has had the shape of his nose changed for life by calling another man a liar."

BEER* IS GOOD FOR MOST FOLKS (HARDLY ANOTHER BEVERAGE FEEDS SO WELL)

BEER really excels milk as a food-drink for most grown people. And many, many people cannot digest milk easily, because it is so lacking in solid food-contents.

Moreover, milk is so liable to contagion that it is seldom pure when we get it in the cities. But Ontario-brewed beer is really pure,—brewed in cleanliness, of sound materials, in a sanitary way, and brought to the user in the same fit-to-drink state.

Beer Is No Stimulant

Drink beer with meals and at bedtime, as an item of diet that will help the stomach do its work better, and will feed the body besides. Don't choose beer as a stimulant, though,—it does not contain enough alcohol for that. Use it as a food-drink that induces lazy stomachs to do their work well, and so helps them get more good out of all food.

Beer Makes Better Nerves

Ontario beer is not only deliciously appetizing and refreshing, because brewed of pure malt and hops only; but, besides, all the power that hops possess to repair nerve wastes is kept in these brews. That is what makes beer so particularly good for women to drink regularly. Ask your own doctor what he thinks of beer for your household.

It Keeps the Muscles Pliant—Men given to muscular sports and exercises and those who suffer muscular pains from bicycle riding will find Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil something worth trying. As a lubricant it will keep the muscles pliant and free from pains which often follow constant use of them, without softening or impairing their strength. For bruises, sprains and contusions it is without a peer.

Gunner—"A wireless" piano is the latest. Guyer—"Huh! When they invent a soundless one life will be worth living!"

BY BRINGING THE NERVES with opium you may stop a cough but the inflammation goes from bad to worse. Allen's Lung Balsam, containing no opium, goes to the root of the trouble and cures deep-seated affections of throat and lungs.

Anxious Mother—"Are you better this morning, darling?" Smith Invalid—"I don't know. Is there any more jelly?" Anxious Mother—"No, dear, you ate the last of it yesterday." Smith Invalid—"Then I guess I'm well enough to get up."

Not a Nauseating Pill—The expense of a pill is the substance which enters the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parke's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from rotting, are rolled in powders, which prove nauseating to the taste. Parke's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

Get Your Roofs Shingled Right

For Less Money And Less Work

You can put on a roof that will last a hundred years and be the right kind of a roof every minute. Or you can put on a ten-year roof that will probably leak after the first rain hits it, and keep leaking till it is rotted away.

Either roof will cost you about the same in money at the start. But the "Oshawa"-shingled roof will be FIRE-PROOF—literally; and wind-proof—actually; and lightning-proof—positively. That's the hundred-year roof! And that "Oshawa"-shingled roof will be weather-proof for a century. We'll GUARANTEE in every way for a quarter-century—from now till Nineteen-Thirty-Two.

Guaranteed in writing for 25 years—and you needn't ever paint it, even! That's saying something, isn't it? What would your mill-man say if you asked him to guarantee cedar shingles for even ten years? He certainly would make remarks!

And even the best cedar-shingled roof will be leaking badly inside of ten years. Seven out of ten of them leak the first time it rains. No wood-shingled roof is fire-proof for a minute, and the first high wind that catches a loose shingle—whooosh! goes half your shingled roof over into the next township.

Yet cedar shingles cost you just about the price of these guaranteed "Oshawa" Shingles—28-gauge toughened steel, double galvanized—good for a century, guaranteed in writing till 1932, fire- and wind-and-weather-proof and lightning-proof. Four-dollars-and-a-half a square buys "Oshawa" Galvanized Steel Shingles—ten feet by ten feet. Compare that with the present price of cedar shingles—how does it strike you?

And you can put on these "Oshawa" Galvanized Steel Shingles yourself, easily,—with no tools but a claw-hammer and snips. Simplest thing you know—can't get 'em on wrong.

"Oshawa" Shingles lock on all four sides—whole roof is practically one sheet of double-galvanized steel, that never needs painting.

And GUARANTEED—don't overlook that. Guaranteed in writing, over the seal of a company with a quarter-million capital,—guaranteed in plain English, without any ifs or buts, for 25 long years.

That's the argument in a nutshell—cost the same as wood-shingles; fire-proof, water-proof, rust-proof, lightning-proof; easier to put on; and GUARANTEED. That's the "Oshawa" proposition! Tell us the measurement of any roof, and we'll tell you exactly what it will cost to roof it with less work and for less money.

Plenty of facts that concern your pocket-book come to you as soon as you ask for our free book, "Roofing Right." A post card will do to ask on.

The Excelsior Fire Brigade held their annual oyster supper in the town hall on Wednesday evening. Supper was served from six until eight o'clock and the firemen and their able assistants were kept busy for a couple of hours attending to the wants of their guests.
The oysters were of the best and cooked to perfection, and with the other toothsome viands provided, made an excellent supper. Everyone attending the firemen's supper always

A Dutchman's Honeymoon.

"A Dutchman's Honeymoon" which comes to the Opera House Tuesday,
Dec. 3rd, promises to be an innovation to lovers of wholesome comedy. It's story deals with the elopement of Hans Schnitzle, a young German, and Araminta Jason, of questionable mental capacity, whose father objects to her suitor. Learning of their flight, he seeks the aid of the police, in locating their whereabouts. Hans, with his fiancée, goes to the home of Adolph Busch, a compatriot of his, and asks to be hidden until they can slip away from the police. Busch cannot comply with his wishes, as he, in company with Jack Clinton, are hiding from an official, who has followed them to the house, from a boxing exhibition, which was suddenly interrupted by the police, from which they had to fly to escape the disgrace of taking a free ride.
Hans, seeing the policemen outside the house, thinks he is after him, and explains the situation to Vinita, Busch's daughter. She suggests that Hans and Araminta get married at once, by the new minister, an alias, under which Busch had to introduce Jack Clinton in order to explain his presence in the house at eleven o'clock at night. Hans thinks it a great scheme, and the ceremony is performed. They start on their honeymoon. Mrs. Busch, dis-

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the stomach, etc.

A weak Stomach, causing dyspepsia, a weak Heart with palpitation or intermittent pulse, always means weak stomach nerve or Heart nerve. Strengthen these inside or controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly these ailments will disappear. Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. will mail samples free. Write for them. A test will tell. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by ALL DEALERS. 37-m daughter. She suggests that Hans and Araminta get married at once, by the new minister, an alias, under which Busch had to introduce Jack Clinton in order to explain his presence in the house at eleven o'clock at night. Hans thinks it a great scheme, and the ceremony is performed. They start on their honeymoon. Mrs. Busch, discovering that Jack is not what she supposed he was, but an expert in the manly art of self defence, tries to stop the honeymoon. The complications which arise from the mock marriage, Jack's stratagem in trying to redeem himself, and Hans's quandary as to "Am I my wife's husband," or "If I am married, how is it I am still single," furnish the comedy element and plot of the play.

Learn Dress-Making By Mail in your spare time at home, or Take a Personal Course at School

To enable all to learn, we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school once a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment from the plainest shirt waist suit, to the most elaborate dress. The whole family can learn from one course. We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the age of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada and excelled by none in any other country. Write at once for particulars, as we have cut our rate one-third for a short time. Address:—

SANDERS' DRESS CUTTING SCHOOL,
31 Erie St., Stratford, Ont., Canada.

WANTED AT ONCE—We have decided to instruct and employ a number of smart young ladies to teach our course in Dressmaking, having one teacher for the six nearest towns where they live—age 20 to 35. Those who have worked at dress-making, or like drawing preferred. Please do not apply unless you can devote your whole time. Address—

THE BEST FLOUR.

DAFOE'S NONESUCH DAFOE'S MANITOBA PATENT

By numerous tests by the best Bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best Flours in the market.

When buying Flour ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually, when it reaches you, of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto on to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy Flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sell you an inferior Flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

CHOICE CORN MEAL and BUCK-WHEAT FLOUR always on hand.

Have You Been Misled?

Some time ago, owing to an erroneous report in circulation that a raise in the CAMPBELL HOUSE rates had been made on the farming community hereabouts, a correction appeared in these columns. Further stories have made it necessary to again enter a denial. In this connection we have much pleasure in saying that not only does the rate remain $1.00 PER DAY - 25c A MEAL TO THE FARMERS' AND LOCAL PATRONAGE EXCLUSIVELY ($1.50 and $2.00 per day to the travelling public) in the face of a high market, but an expenditure of a steam heating plant, telephones, etc., which will enhance very materially the well known conveniences, comfort and quality of this commodious hostelry. A courteous welcome is extended. THE CAMPBELL HOUSE, H. Taylor.

A Tax Sale.

The County treasurer's sale of lands for taxes was held at the Court house on Tuesday morning. Thirty two lots in Denbigh, Abinger, Ashby, Kalamay and Sheffield were offered, and but one lot sold. A number of the lots were withdrawn from sale by the owners paying the taxes, and the balance will be offered at an adjourned sale to be held in the Court House on Tuesday, December 10th at 10 a. m.

Former Wardens

A number of the photos of former wardens of the county have been placed on the walls of the County Council Chamber in the Court House. The following photos are those already placed. Sidney Warner, N. P. Wood, W. N. Doler, U. M. Wilson, Irvine Parks, Robt. Filson, J. C. Carscallen, Jno. Carson, H. A. Baker, Hiram Keech, R. A. Fowler, W. A. Martin, M. C. Bogart, and L. L. Gallagher, the present warden and donor of the photos. A photo of Mr. W. G. Wilson, county clerk, and pictures of the King and Queen also adorn the walls of the Council Chamber. The photos are all neatly framed in weathered oak frames, and are excellent samples of the photographers art. The photos are all from the gallery of Mr. F. S. Richardson. During the past week the Council Chamber has been brightened up by a new coat of varnish making the room bright and cheerful.

Shipping Fowl.

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week Messrs. J. F. Smith & Son held their annual Turkey days, to purchase turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens for shipment to the west. About twenty-two tons of fowl were purchased and about seven thousand dollars distributed by Messrs Smith & Son among the farmers of the county. The firm are to be commended for their enterprise in thus furnishing a ready market every year for all the surplus fowl raised by the farmers and incidentally furnishing the farmers with a large amount of ready cash.

Hurt in a Runaway.

Mrs. C. H. Finkle and daughter, Helen, Newburgh, met with what might have been a serious accident on Monday evening while out driving. Mrs. Finkle and her daughter were crossing the Newburgh bridge, when the horse put his foot in a hole in the bridge, and stumbled, breaking the check rein. Recovering himself with a jerk he drew the front wheel into the same hole and the jolt threw Miss Finkle, who was driving, out of the buggy, leaving Mrs. Finkle no means of controlling the horse. The animal ran towards Thompson's Mills, and after going a considerable distance Mrs. Finkle was thrown out and was found unconscious beside the road, a mile and a half from the village, opposite Mr. O'Hara's residence, into which she was hastily carried. Dr. Beeman was immediately summoned and restoratives applied, but the injured woman did not regain consciousness until Tuesday morning. She was brought home, where she lies in great suffering, both from bruises received and the severe nervous shock. The extent and seriousness of her injuries can hardly yet be determined. Expressions of deep regret and sympathy in this untoward mishap are universal in the village, and the deepest concern is felt in the outcome. It is supposed that Mrs. Finkle fainted in the carriage and fell to the roadside, as her last recollection is of an intention to jump, though she cannot remember carrying this into effect. Miss Helen Finkle escaped unhurt.

THOS. SYMINGTON.

Napanee, November 10th, 1907.

E. Vanness, of Kingston, has been spending several weeks in the back townships and been deeply interested in its mining wealth, which is becoming more evident monthly by discoveries. On the farm of George Black, in Sheffield township, four miles east of Tamworth, have been lately taken red hematite, iron ore, feldspar and mineral earth, specimens of which have been given to the science school at Queen's College for examination.—Whig.

Begin your Christmas shopping now. This is the burden of the request which the merchant makes of his patron. He makes it for sufficient reasons. The Christmas goods are already on sale. The selling staffs are on duty and ready to add to their routine work the additional tasks of holiday selling. If on no other ground than that of sparing the employees the almost intolerable overwork of former Christmas weeks, buyers in Napanee should be glad to begin their Christmas buying early this year. The merchant, moreover, would be able to sell with a better chance of suiting the individual patron's taste than would be possible when little time was left for a nice choice. The money for the purchase is just as easy to find now as it will be five weeks hence. And on the final point of convenience to the shopper, no argument need be used. Begin your Christmas shopping now.
